Patched-Up Ethics Bill Faces State Senate in Albany

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A patched-up ethics bill was before the Senate for action today as lawmakers continued their long struggle to dispose of that troublesome issue.

The Senate, which previously made major changes in the Assembly - approved ethics bill, made further revisions Wednesday to meet objections from Gov. Rockefeller's office.

The developments on ethics came during a legislative day that also saw action on such issues as harness racing and billboards.

Bills on Penal Law
The major legislation on the Assembly's agenda today was a series of bills to overhaul the state's penal law. The most controversial provisions would eliminate from the category of crimes adultery and acts of sexual deviation between consenting adults.

Both houses of the Legislature continued to deal with heavy calendars, hoping to wind up the marathon session by the middle of this month.

The much-amended ethics bill faced still further efforts to change it in the Senate. An amendment was ready today to restore a provision to bar lawyer-legislators from appearing, for a fee, before most state agencies.

Other Matters
In other developments Wednesday:
— The Assembly gave final legislative approval to a bill to raise the state minimum wage to $1.50 an hour, the second such bill the Democratic-controlled Legislature has sent to the Republican governor.

The Senate approved and sent to the Assembly a bill under which the state would give up $2 million in additional revenue from harness-racing tracks, with up to $1.5 million of that amount to be returned to the tracks for distribution as purses.

The Senate defeated by a narrow margin a bill that would have relaxed billboard restrictions on those parts of the State Thruway running through city areas zoned for commerce and industry.

Provision Eliminated
The Senate had scheduled a vote on its amended ethics bill Wednesday, but the governor's office raised objections, pointing out that the bill would have required all state employees to file reports on financial holdings in state - regulated activities, no (Continued on Page 16, Col. 3)

two other Americans who were uninjured.

A U.S. military spokesman said the Communist guerrillas attacked elements of a government battalion on the way to clear a road southeast of Cheo Reo village, in Phu Bon Province.

"The casualties are very heavy," the spokesman said.

Yank Toll for Week 12
Two U.S. Marine fliers were reported killed when their small scout plane crashed and burned nine miles northwest of Da Nang. This brought American deaths for the week to 12.

A Marine spokesman said the pilot apparently lost control of the liaison plane while flying through a cloud. Informants said both men perished in the flaming wreckage.

A helicopter flew to the site but crashed, injuring three U.S. Air Force crewmen.

No Communist groundfire was believed involved, the spokesman said, but two American Marines and 42 Vietnamese special force soldiers stood guard during the rescue.

In another ambush, the Viet Cong smashed a government convoy 150 miles northeast of Saigon, killing at least 10 government soldiers and destroying a number of vehicles.

Two Americans with the convoy, 2nd Lt. James M. Dilg of Casper, Wyo., and Sgt. Charles M. Curry of Watsonville, Calif., fought their way out of the trap unhurt.

Lucky to Get Out Alive
"The Viet Cong had mortars zeroed on us from both sides of the road," Curry said, "and their machine guns were so close you could see their muzzle blasts. We were mighty lucky to get out of that one alive."

A Viet Cong battalion assaulted the district town of Binh Chanh, only 10 miles from Saigon, and 30 defenders of an outpost were missing. The noise of the battle could be heard clearly in Saigon. Six armed U.S. helicopters beat off the attacking Communists.

A U.S. spokesman said government units estimated they killed 40 guerrillas in a search operation near Bac Lieu, in the Mekong Delta. No government casualties were reported.

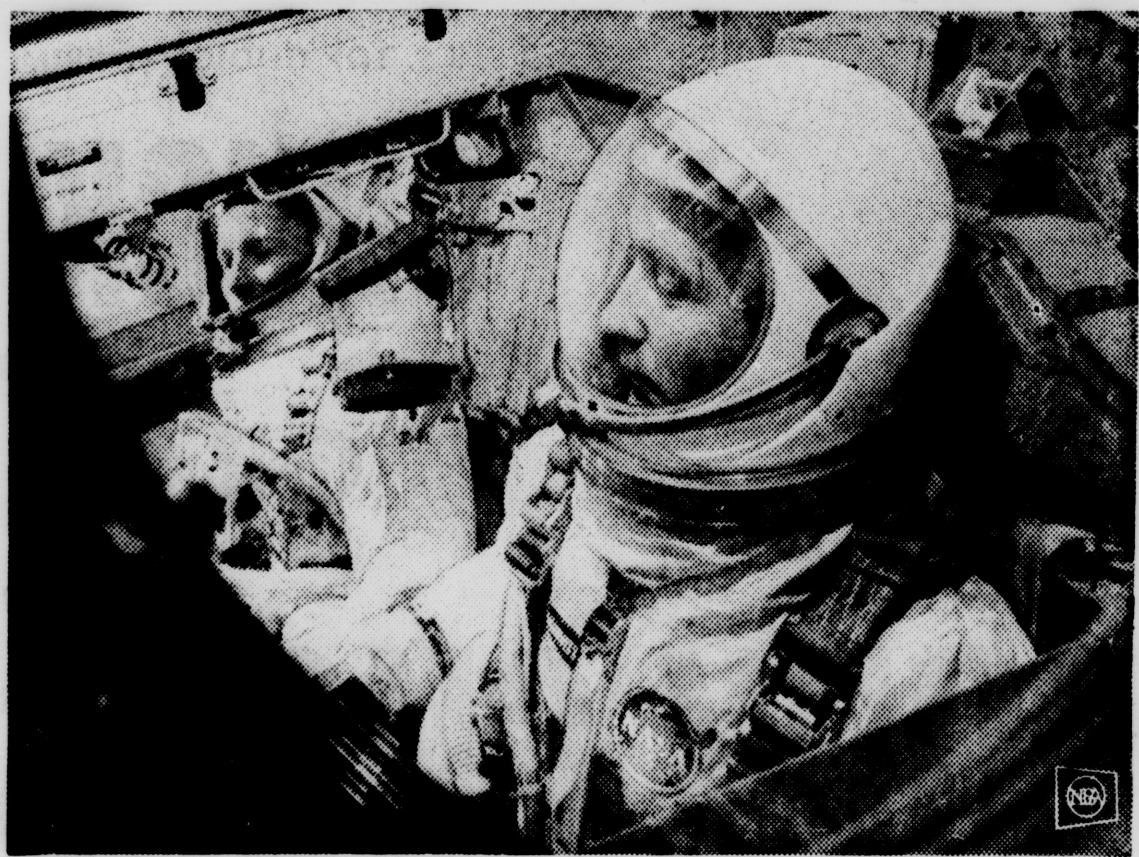

U.S. warplanes flew round-the-clock missions against targets in North Viet Nam today in one of the heaviest days of raids in recent weeks.

One of Biggest Strikes
In one of the biggest strikes, 26 Air Force bombers pounded the Ben Quang barracks for 40 minutes, destroying 54 buildings, a spokesman said.

Pilots said that smoke and flames were visible more than 25 miles from the barracks, which is just north of the border between North and South Viet Nam.

U.S. Navy planes flew repeated strikes over dozens of routes during the day, destroying trucks, refueling areas, and bridges.

In one strike 165 miles south of Hanoi, nine F105 Thunderchiefs were fired by automatic weapons from a large boat in the ocean about 10 miles south of Can Mui Ron. Attack (Continued on Page 16, Col. 6)

Rain Bolsters City's Water Supply, State Facing 4th Dry Year

Wednesday's rainfall in the watershed feeding Cooper Lake, Kingston's main reservoir poured more water in supply streams than the entire month of May.

Edmund T. Cloonan, water department superintendent, reported the one-day precipitation of 1.59 inches compared to .77 of an inch during May.

An Albany Associated Press report notes, however, that while most of the state benefited from at least a half inch of rain, this week drought continues to be "the spectre of this year's spring scene."

Rainfall in Kingston Wednesday by record of the city engineer's office was far less than in the mountain areas with only .67 of an inch reported, but May fared better in the city with .90 of an inch.

Hit Danger Point
Cooper Lake storage in 1964 began going down May 25 and by June 3 it was eight-tenths of a foot below spillway level.

The reservoir continued losing water until it reached the danger point in November when the reserve was 18½ feet below spillway level.

This year it remains at capacity, as of this date, having gained by the rains of late winter and early spring, but there is still danger ahead unless the rain pattern improves in the entire northeastern region, which in large areas has been abnormal for some three years.

May of 1964 followed the drought pattern of that year with only .97, but the cumulative rainfall of that year from Jan. 1 to June 3, by local water department figures, reported at 16.3, was far better than the 12.81 inches on record for the same period this year.

Better in Spring
Wednesday's rain could have been better appreciated in watershed areas had it come in early spring rather than in the season of sprouting foliage which permits less runoff in reservoir-feeding streams.

While Wednesday's rain was reported favorably soaking in some mountain areas it was considered generally less beneficial in the Mid-Hudson Valley fruit belt where precipitation ranged generally from three-fourths of an inch to an inch. The Catskill area also reported less than that in the Cooper Lake watershed. The total there was 1.51 inches compared to the 1.59 in the local watershed area.

Not Enough Elsewhere
Concerning most of New York State, the Associated Press reported that Wednesday's half-inch of rain was not enough to

Unruffled by Hour's Delay; Booster Rendezvous Chances Slim for White After Walk

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Mission director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. today scrubbed the planned rendezvous of the Gemini 4 spacecraft with its burned-out second stage booster.

The mission control center at Houston reported that McDivitt, the command pilot, has used 50 per cent of his fuel capability in attempting to maneuver toward the satellite — the second stage of the Titan 2 booster which hurled the Gemini 4 into orbit.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White II soared into orbit today to start one of man's most exciting adventures — an intended four-day flight during which White planned to emerge into the emptiness of space near another orbiting satellite.

The marathon flight could be one of the most spectacular and significant in the space age and give the United States a lead in at least one phase of the race to the moon.

"Beautiful! Beautiful!" were the first words to come down from the space ship as it soared into orbit.

First of Decisions
As Gemini 4 whirled above the Camarvon, Australia, tracking station 50 minutes after launch, the Mission Control Center at Houston, Tex., gave them a go-ahead for at least three of their planned 62 circuits.

This was the first of nine critical "go-no go" decisions scheduled for the mission. The others were set for orbits, 3, 5, 16, 20, 31, 35, 46 and 50.

As the great Titan 2 booster rocket drilled the Gemini 4 spacecraft on the start of its long ride, McDivitt reported to Mission Control Center: "It looks great up here."

Minutes later, the 7,600-pound spacecraft was in an orbit ranging from 100 to 176 miles above the earth. The orbit was precisely the orbital path intended.

Booster Stage Tumbling
The target satellite for White's planned excursion into space was the burned-out second stage of the rocket. The stage followed a few hundred feet behind the capsule in orbit.

McDivitt, as command pilot, twisted the bell-shaped space ship around 180 degrees to take a look at the booster stage and to align the capsule in formation with it.

He radioed that the huge booster stage was tumbling.

Near the end of the second orbit—about 1:17 p.m. EST—McDivitt was to maneuver Gemini 4 to within 25 feet of the stage. Then, in a page out of science fiction, White planned to open a hatch and leave the spacecraft, using a "space gun propulsion unit" to maneuver close to the target.

He was to photograph it and other space objects.

Space agency officials had said before the flight that White might even attempt to touch the booster stage if he were not tumbling too severely.

But when McDivitt reported at the beginning that the stage was tumbling, White's chances of contacting it were considered slim. The huge booster was reported to be about half a mile from the spacecraft.

An hour after the flight started, Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' physician, gave the medical go-ahead for White to leave the spacecraft and float in space.

After floating in the black void of space for 12 minutes on the end of a 25-foot golden lifeline, White was to return to the craft.

100 Miles Above U. S.
Most of his excursion was to take place more than 100 miles above the southern United States as Gemini 4 crossed from Mexico to Georgia.

After this jaunt, McDivitt was to maneuver about 16 miles away from the orbiting booster. Then, during the fifth orbit, he was again to try to rendezvous with the booster, possibly approaching to within 10 feet.

No exit was planned during this maneuver.

Must Be Perfect
Both the ability to rendezvous and to operate outside of an orbiting spacecraft are techniques which must be perfected for later flight to the moon.

The dramatic journey of the Gemini 4 started at 10:16 a.m. EST when the mighty Titan 2 thundered off its Cape Kennedy launching stand and propelled the craft into its precise orbit.

62 Planned Circuits
It was the start of America's longest attempted manned flight yet — an endurance mission scheduled to end about 12:05 p.m. EST next Monday after 62 circuits of the globe in 97 hours, 50 minutes.

The launching was delayed 1 hour, 16 minutes because of a balky launch pad service tower that would not fold down from the rocket due to an electrical malfunction.

Despite the excitement attached to the rendezvous and space excursion maneuvers, mission director Christopher C. Kraft Jr., said the main goal of the flight was to determine how well men and spacecraft systems can withstand a long exposure to the space environment.

The flight, if carried to completion, would eclipse the present American record of 34 hours, 20 minutes established in May 1963 by astronaut Gordon Cooper.

Russian Holds Record
A Russian cosmonaut, Valeri Bykovsky, holds the record of 119 hours, 6 minutes.

As the great two-stage Air Force Titan rocket lifted Gemini 4 skyward with a thunderous roar, the pilots reported all systems in good condition.

About seven minutes after blastoff, Mission Control Center reported Gemini was in a successful orbit.

McDivitt fired small jets to provide the final maneuver that put the vehicle in proper orbit and in a flying formation with the rocket stage.

Mission Control Center at Houston reported it thought it heard McDivitt estimate he stage was orbiting about 500 feet behind the spacecraft.

This was close enough for White to attempt a rendezvous with the booster during the second orbit.

First for Houston
It was the first time that control of a U.S. man-in-space flight had shifted to the new multimillion-dollar plant at NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center at Houston. All future NASA manned flights will be conducted in this manner, although all will start from Cape Kennedy.

The burned-out second stage of the Titan 2, 27 feet long and 10 feet in diameter, larger than the spacecraft which is 19 feet tall and 9½ feet across the base. The rocket stage was equipped with two high intensity blinking lights to help the pilots spot it in darkness.

The launch of the 165-ton, 90-foot long Titan was watched by thousands who lined the Cape Kennedy beaches, roadsides and other vantage points.

Millions, including President Kennedy, were watching the launch.

At the end of the calendar year, theater and other admission taxes would be eliminated along with those on club dues, auto parts and sales of stocks and real estate. The auto levy would come down one point more and the telephone tax of 10 per cent would drop three points, first stage of a gradual elimination to be completed by Jan. 1, 1969.

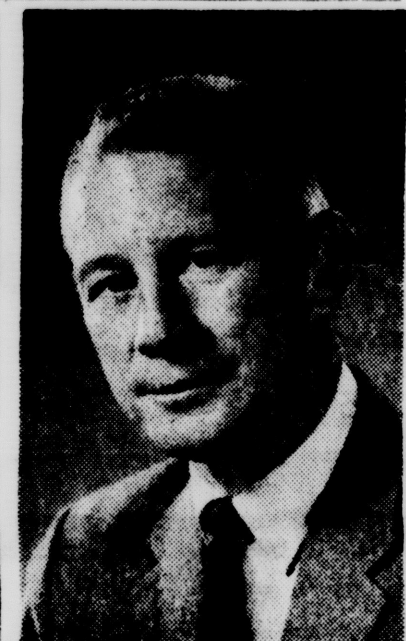

Senators, like House members, have been declining for years against the excises, which date from the depression, World War II or the Korean War. The bill also would end the levy on local and long-distance telephone service and the admissions tax on tickets to movies, plays, musicals, concerts and athletic events costing $1 or more.

House sponsors of the bill said the repealers would give a boost to the economy and would improve the balance of payments.

The House cleared the bill Wednesday after adding about $900 million in cuts to those Johnson proposed. The House used only about two of the four hours allotted for debate on the measure.

The additional $900-million cut comes from complete elimination of the 10 per cent levy on automobiles over a four-year period. Johnson had proposed only cutting it to 5 per cent.

The total first-year revenue reduction would amount to only about $1.75 billion as Johnson proposed but with the additional five points coming off automobiles the eventual annual cut would run around $4.8 billion.

LAWRENCE B. SIEWERS

Succeeds Shampo As Director at Children's Home

The Board of Managers of the Children's Home has announced the appointment of Lawrence B. Siewers as the executive director of the Children's Home, effective June 1. He is a charter member of the National Association of Social Workers and a member of the Academy of Certified Social Workers.

Gerald E. Shampo, who was executive director of the Children's Home for 14 years, submitted his resignation in February.

Shampo's resignation was given at that time to allow him to work for an educational degree of master of social work. He came to the Children's Home from the Children's Village at Dobbs Ferry, where he was an assistant to the dean of the Middle School.

Graduate of Syracuse
Siewers is a graduate of Syracuse University, and continued his studies at the University of Buffalo School of Social Work. From 1952-1954 Siewers served as Child Development Counselor on the Otsego County Vocational Education and Extension Board, which does school social work in (Continued on Page 16, Col. 4)

See Referendum As Possible on Port Ewen Park

A referendum may decide the fate of the $45,000 expansion and refurbishing program for Ross Park at Port Ewen according to action taken at a public hearing on the project held Wednesday night at Esopus Town Hall, Port Ewen.

Variety of Opinions
Supervisor Roger Mabie said there was a great variety of opinions expressed among the more than 150 residents of the district attending. Also in attendance were members of Esopus Town Board, the park commissioners, Brinnier and Larios, consulting engineers, and Charles Gaffney, attorney for the town.

Mabie outlined the program for a referendum and the Town Board turned the matter over to Attorney Gaffney to study the feasibility of holding a vote on the subject.

Gaffney will report at the Wednesday night Town Board meeting.

To Cost $45,000
The estimated $45,000 cost of the project includes installation of all facilities, drainage, fill, fencing and seeding.

Financing for the project would result in a tax rate figure for residents of the park district not to exceed $3.72 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Rondout Nat'l Branch Favored For Woodstock

The Rondout National Bank will establish a branch at the Bradley Meadows site to be developed in the center of Woodstock village by Howard C. St. John, Kingston attorney.

Announcement of the new branch at Woodstock was made today by James A. Dwyer, president of Rondout National, who said that the application for a franchise to operate the branch was approved by the controller of the currency.

Rondout National operates a main office at 635 Broadway at the corner of Henry Street, Kingston and a branch office at Main and Broadway in Port Ewen.

The National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties is the only bank now serving the immediate Woodstock area.

To Start Construction
The Freeman was unable today to ascertain further details about the development of the Bradley Meadows site as St. John has left for Europe. However, it was learned that plans for the shopping center have been completed and approved. The A & P supermarket will be in a separate building, which is expected soon to be under construction. The Rondout National Bank branch will be the corner offices of the other building, which has (Continued on Page 36, Col. 4)

Social Agencies Council To Make Check of County

The proposed survey of the county's health, welfare and recreation services is now a reality, according to Clifford A. Henze, president of the Citizens Survey Committee of Ulster County.

The survey committee has engaged the Institute of Community Studies to perform the initial field work which is scheduled for next week, June 6 through June 12.

Kenneth M. Storandt, executive director of the Council of Social Agencies of Rochester and Monroe County, has been appointed field director for the survey by the Institute. In addition to Storandt, four consultants or specialists from the fields of health, family and child welfare, recreation and youth services, and central services will spend the entire week in Ulster County interviewing a host of agencies and county leaders.

The following agencies will be interviewed by the consultants:

Health — Muscular Dystrophy, National Foundation, Ulster County Health Department, Ulster County Home, New Paltz; Ulster County Mental Health Center, Ulster County TB and Health Association, Ulster County TB Hospital, Ulster County Tumor Clinic, Home for the Aged, Cancer Society, Association for Retarded Children, Benedictine Hospital, Cerebral Palsy, Gateways Industries, Kingston Hospital, Ulster County Heart Chapter, Ulster County Association for Mental Health and Ulster County Infirmary.

See Quick Senate Action for Johnson's Excise Cuts, House Adds $900 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's excise-tax cut roared through the House by a 401-6 vote and the Senate doesn't plan to stand in its way.

In fact the Senate is clearing the track for the bill that would lower prices on autos, air conditioners, cameras, watches and a lot of other items.

The Finance Committee is putting aside the health-care bill to take up the excise bill beginning Tuesday. Only one witness will be called, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler.

The committee members agreed informally to keep the excise legislation winning along by not trying to add extraneous amendments.

Assistant Democratic Leader Russell B. Long of Louisiana said he hopes the Senate can pass the bill by the middle of this month.

The total first-year revenue reduction would amount to only about $1.75 billion as Johnson proposed but with the additional five points coming off automobiles the eventual annual cut would run around $4.8 billion.

First to come off, effective July 1, would be the levies of 10 per cent at retail on furs, jewelry, luggage and toilet articles, the first three percentage points of the auto cut, and the taxes, mostly 10 per cent at the manufacturer's level, on appliances, cameras, business machines, radios, phonographs, television

Reformed Church Will Vote on Merger Proposal

The General Synod of the Reformed Church in America, meeting in annual session at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., today through June 10, will consider recommendations of its joint committee, with a similar committee of the Presbyterian Church in the United States calling upon the Church to begin drafting a plan of union for possible presentation to the two churches not later than 1968.

That differences of opinion exist within the Reformed Church concerning merger with the Presbyterian Church in the United States is revealed by the fact that while three overtures from area bodies call upon the church to proceed at once toward merger, three overtures from other area bodies call upon the church "to cease and desist" discussions of merger with the Presbyterians.

Three area bodies are also calling upon the highest judicatory of the Reformed Church to open the offices of elders and deacons in local congregations to women. Overtures to open the offices of ministers, elders, and deacons in the churches to women were voted down a year ago.

The Christian Action Commission will call upon the General Synod to implement the Covenant of Open Occupancy approved at the session in 1961 at the local congregation level. The commission is also asking the General Synod to adopt a statement opposing the retention of capital punishment as an instrument of justice in our several states, and calling for efforts to improve penal institutions, crime prevention agencies, and police procedures.

May End 'Unofficial GOP Meet'

Wilson Sounds Call For June 12 Parley

A meeting of the Ulster County Republican committee has been called by Chairman Kenneth L. Wilson for Saturday, June 12, at 8 p. m. at the County Court House in the Supreme Court chamber.

According to the notice sent to the committeemen, the meeting has been called for the purpose of considering the amendment of the rules and regulations of the Ulster County Republican Committee; to discuss the qualifications of the several candidates seeking the Republican nomination or surrogate and sheriff; and to establish a date for a meeting to recommend to the enrolled Republican voters of the county names for the various offices and party positions to be filled in Ulster county.

The call for the meeting has been interpreted by some politicians as a possible elimination of the long established custom of holding an "unofficial" county convention in July at which time city and county delegates "recommended" candidates for offices to be filled at the November election.

A committee of seven Republican members of the Ulster County Bar Association was named on April 26 by Chairman Wilson to consider the qualifications of the numerous candidates for surrogate. Former City Chairman Judge John B. Sterley was named chairman of that committee. A meeting was held on May 13 but as a result of that meeting no "recommendation" as to qualifications of the announced candidates was made.

Today Judge Sterley, chairman of the committee, said that no further meeting was scheduled prior to the meeting on June 12 of the County committeemen.

Also named to consider qualifications of the announced Republican candidates for surrogate judge, is a committee of 25 Republican members of the Ulster County Bar Association. A meeting of that committee was held and it is reported that four of the five announced candidates had been endorsed as qualified for the position.

The position of surrogate, a $20,000 per year position, with a 10-year term under the new state law, prohibits the surrogate judge from practicing law and he must devote his full time to the position.

Representatives from 10 of the Subordinate Granges attended the Rural Life Sunday Services held at Hurley Reformed Church Sunday night. The Rev. Harold F. Schadewald, pastor delivered an inspiring message. Hurley Grange, with Howard Kearney as master, were hosts at the social hour which followed the service.

The Junior Grange Degree will be given by the Mt. Tremper Junior Grange Degree Team at the Lake Katrine Grange on Saturday at 4:15 p. m., following the afternoon session of Pomona Grange. Candidates will be initiated from all the Junior Granges in the county. Matrons and Junior Grange committeemen will assist the Junior Grange Deputy Mrs. Charles Everett in the social period.

Should that fail, the spacesuit provides life support.

Astronauts Fully Familiar With Their Gemini 4

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS
AP Aerospace Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — When James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II climb into their Gemini 4 spacecraft today for 62 laps around the world, it will be the umpteenth time they have entered the ship.

All the other times have been leading to this climactic moment. If the cramped, tiny cabin seems familiar, it should. The two spacemen have spent more time in it than they have in their own homes over the past nine months.

The two men have undergone some harrowing experiences readying for their record-breaking, four-day space journey from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

They have been locked up tight in the spacecraft and tossed overboard in rough Gulf of Mexico waters, shaken up like a milkshake on vibrators, whirled at dizzying speeds on centrifuges, pulled into the air by a speedboat to float down into icy waters at the end of a parachute.

But most of their time was spent sitting in the Gemini mission simulator, a duplicate of the spacecraft that is bolted to the floor and doesn't go anywhere.

John Van Bockel, chief of the training section at the Manned

Spacecraft Center, said McDivitt and White have had more training than planned because the flight was originally scheduled for early this year.

Training started last September. Almost everything that can happen on a space flight, including the emergencies, has been practiced — not once or twice, but hundreds of times.

The two Air Force majors should be able to do every part of the mission blindfolded.

They have lifted parts of the mission out of the flight plan and rehearsed them to the point of automatic reflex.

White has gotten out and then back into the spacecraft 110 times in weightless flying, practicing for his stroll in space.

Engineers deliberately fouled up his oxygen feed in the lifeline during tests to see how he would react — not once, but 20 times.

White spent 60 hours in his space suit alone in the harsh void of a vacuum in pressure chambers. The gloves, helmet and zippers have been tested and retested by both White and McDivitt.

Backup crewmen Air Force Maj. Frank Borman and Navy Lt. Cmdr. James A. Lovell have taken the same training with the two primary crew members.

TECHNOLOGY'S A TOOL

Commencement oratory rarely tells us anything we do not already know. Reminder, not revelation, is the stuff of such addresses. But a timely reminder of an important point is not at all a bad thing; it tends to bring our thoughts into focus, to make us stand back and look at what our society is doing.

This was the case with Vice President Humphrey's commencement address at St. Olaf College in his home state of Minnesota. Having received the honorary degree of doctor of laws, the vice president chose to remind his audience that though modern technology is a boon "we must understand its effect upon our society and ensure that it continues to serve us, not itself."

There is nothing new in that. It has been said variously by many observers of how our society has developed during the past couple of decades. The point is one eminently worthy reiteration, however. For as Humphrey further said: "Technology in itself is not the end of our aspirations. Those who lead technology are the first to say it is no more than a tool. The value of that tool depends on the intelligence, judgment and creativity of man himself."

This is a thing to keep deliberately and persistently in the forefront of our thinking. It is an easy thing to forget as we are carried along by the rush of events—the space program, the burgeoning of automation, the growth of computerized society. At such a time, human values tend to be shunted aside. This tendency, if not checked, could mean death to what is best in our culture. It is essential to bear in mind that technology is created for man, not man for technology.

The President complains about airplane racket waking him up. We have a war on poverty and a war on ugliness. Maybe we'll also have a war on noise.

EDUCATION PRESSURES

A warning fraught with serious implications for the future of higher learning has been voiced by a competent authority. James K. Hitt, retiring head of the Association of Collegiate Registrars, said in a recent interview in U. S. News & World Report, "We are getting perilously close to outrunning the capacity of our colleges" to handle all the applications for admission.

Tens of thousands of high school graduates Hitt noted, are being turned away by the colleges of their choice. He suggests that those rejected in September apply again at mid-year. Two-semester institutions, Hitt said, usually have many vacancies by February due to drop-outs.

Hitt favors admission centers to get students and colleges together. Some areas have far more applicants than openings, he says, while others have more openings than applicants. His proposal seems a good one.

Other things ought to be tried. One idea that suggests itself to a layman is to greatly increase the number of extension classes. Some might be night classes for students who must work days. The task of providing adequate educational opportunity for all who want it demands an imaginative, many faceted approach.

TEST THAT JACKET

The boating season is in full swing. Americans are skimming across the nation's lakes in greater numbers than ever before. This year, as in the past, new converts are discovering the pleasures of life afloat.

The importance of adequate safety measures for the boating family has been emphasized many times. The point deserves further emphasis, especially in the wake of a recent tragedy in which three fishermen drowned although they were wearing life jackets. Subsequent tests proved the jackets were not capable of holding an adult on the surface of the water.

There are different types of life preservers. Most are designed to hold the head of an unconscious person out of the water, but it is possible that some of the old unimproved styles are still in use. These should be replaced. Time is not kind to the life jacket, either, and a yearly test is advisable

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

HOKUM ABOUT FREE CONTRACT

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, testifying before a Congressional committee the other day, put the case for repeal of the "right to work" clause of the Taft-Hartley Act on the philosophically correct ground that employers and workers should feel free to decide the sort of contract they want between them, even if it involves a union shop.

This is a point of view that in the past has even had the support of some conservatives. I believe that Professor Milton Friedman, the University of Chicago economics professor who believes in individual freedom more than most of his academic colleagues, would support Secretary Wirtz in his statement of the case for repeal of the "right to work" clause known as 14B.

But in resting his argument on the abstract proposition that union shop and closed shop agreements should be protected under "freedom of contract" if and when employers and labor leaders mutually decide they want them, Secretary Wirtz was unwittingly raising some old ghosts. The union leaders of America don't really want freedom of contract. They fought bitterly against the whole idea throughout the Twenties and the Thirties of this century, and the upshot of their battle was a whole tissue of labor laws that specifically outlaw many things that used to be supported by the "freedom of contract" idea.

For example, many employers in the bad old days insisted on the freedom to sign so-called yellow dog contracts with their workers. Under the terms of a yellow dog contract, freely accepted as a condition of employment, a worker would promise that he would never join a union while his contract was in force. Labor didn't like this sort of free contracting at all. It went all out for the Norris-LaGuardia legislation that outlawed the yellow dog contract. Would Secretary Wirtz be prepared today to extend his "right to decide" argument to cover a repeal of the anti-yellow dog law?

The Wagner Act itself forced many restrictions on the "right to decide" upon both employers and labor. It gave fifty-one per cent of the workers in any shop the right to become the bargaining agent for all the workers whether they wanted it or not. Secretary Wirtz would hardly stand up for the free contractual rights of a minority of forty-nine per cent to bargain for themselves.

Nor would he stand up for a lot of other things that used to come under freedom of contract. Just recently he has done great positive harm to the farmers of California by abrogating their old rights to enter free contracts with the so-called braceros from Mexico. By clamping down on the California farmers' "right to decide" in the matter of hiring workers from across the border, Secretary Wirtz has deprived citizens of a friendly neighbor state of their traditional means of livelihood. He has raised the price of lettuce to consumers all across the United States. He has caused a cut-back in the planting of tomato crops, he has hurt the members of the Teamsters Union who haul California's agricultural produce from field to canning factory, and he hasn't done much to alleviate unemployment among California city people who prefer to stay on relief rather than stoop over under a hot sun in the fields.

A poll conducted in early May by Public Opinion Research of California, a statewide polling firm of great reliability, showed that 76.2 per cent of the Republicans and 63.6 per cent of the Democrats are in favor of reinstating the right of California ranchers to contract freely with supplemental foreign workers to get their crops planted and harvested.

If the employers of America were to be freed to sign any sort of contract with their workers, I could see the philosophical consistency in repealing the 14B section of the Taft-Hartley Act which permits the individual states to forbid union shop contracts.

But it is laughter for the gods when Secretary of Labor Wirtz, of all people, suggests that 14B should be outlawed in the name of the abstract "right to decide." Secretary Wirtz believes in the free "right to decide." Just about as much as I believe in the god of Cassius Clay.

The DOCTOR SAYS

Dangerous Results Likely From Misuse of Drugs

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The misuse of valuable drugs is becoming a serious problem. This applies particularly to the widespread current use of barbiturates ("roof balls") and amphetamines ("pep pills"). Both types of drug can be obtained legally only with a doctor's prescription but bootleg suppliers are all too common.

The amphetamines are abused by persons who can't bear to rest when they are tired. They burn the candle at both ends and stay awake long hours to the detriment of their health. Although these drugs will mask feelings of exhaustion and drowsiness, the result of their improper use is a depletion of energy reserves.

Amphetamines are taken legitimately by persons who suffer from narcolepsy (a sudden uncontrollable urge to sleep while engaged in a normal waking activity), palsy, alcoholism, certain forms of depression and barbiturate poisoning.

Barbiturates are depressants. Because they are habit-forming they should not be taken for prolonged periods but they are of great value in breaking a vicious cycle of nervous tension causing insomnia and insomnia aggravating the nervous tension. They are also used in combination in many preparations for lowering the blood pressure.

When drugs of either of these two types are taken under medical supervision they are harmless. Barbiturates are, however, especially dangerous when taken along with alcohol. The result may be a semiconscious state in which a person takes a larger dose of the drug than he intended.

Some cases of suicide or near suicide attributed to barbiturates have been due to just accidental poisoning.

Q—What is the cause of the carpal tunnel syndrome? What are the symptoms and the treatment?

A—The carpal tunnel syndrome is caused by anything that presses on the median nerve as it passes through a tunnel formed by muscles and ligaments in the wrist. This may be due to poor alignment of a wrist fracture or an infection in this area. It is often associated with a rheumatic involvement of the muscle tendons but in many victims, especially middle-aged women, the cause is unknown.

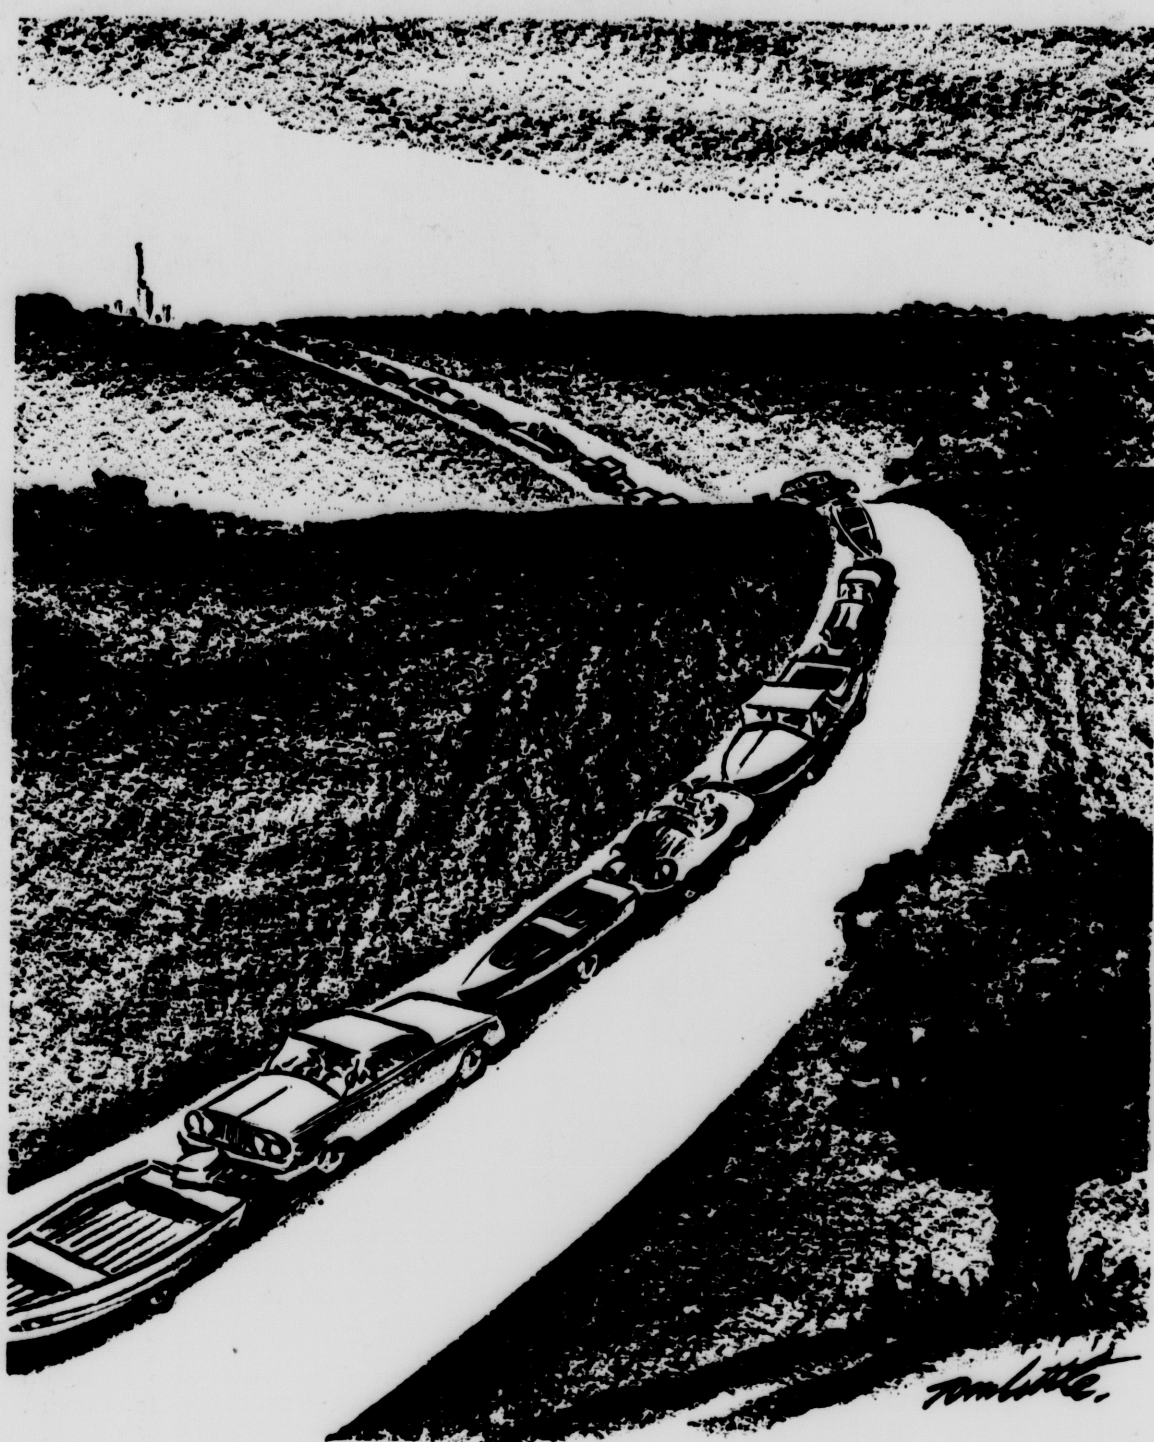

This disease may be manifested by a burning pain, especially at night, in the two thirds of the palm toward the thumb and the thumb, index, middle and half of the ring finger. Later there is weakness and partial or total loss of feeling in these fingers.

If the condition is mild and has been present less than two months an injection of hydrocortisone once a week may be all that is required. If the disease is chronic and progressive there will be some wasting of the muscles in the involved area unless the pressure on the nerve is relieved by a surgical operation.

if one is not to be lulled into a sense of false security.

One often repeated but still necessary word of caution: After the life jacket passes the test, it should be worn when needed. Like the automobile seat belt, it can only do the job if put to work. It won't save lives in the boathouse.

Propeller-to-Bumper Time of Year

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The inevitable grinding on of powerful urbanizing economic forces is perhaps the greatest enemy today of South Africa's controversial policy of racial separation (apartheid).

The constant critical battering from disapproving nations may have had more effect in producing modifications of that policy than the South African government cares to acknowledge.

BUT WHAT REALLY THREATENS the fulfillment of apartheid is, ironically, South Africa's amazing economic growth.

In 1964 the country's gross national product bounded upward 11 per cent over 1963. This sharply heightened industrial manpower needs in booming Johannesburg, Cape Town, Durban and other key cities.

It made them reater magnets than ever for the majority black population, large elements of which already cluster in and about these centers. Movement of rural people toward the big cities has marked the expansion of industrial societies nearly everywhere. South Africa is proving no exception.

Yet the whole thrust of the country's apartheid policy is toward slowing, halting and eventually reversing this enormous economic tide.

For the real goal of that policy is not to enforce racial segregation as we in the United States understand it from the South's efforts. The objective is to build wholly distinct "black reserves" which will be both economically viable and politically self-governing—even independent, if they wish.

The reserves have long existed as distinctively black "homelands," and today hold upward of 4 million of South Africa's 11 million Bantu blacks.

But the government of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd aims ultimately at drawing back to these reserves a great proportion of the other 7 million blacks—about half of whom now live in Johannesburg and the other cities.

TO ACHIEVE THAT E.D., the government is mounting an ambitious program of economic decentralization intended to create new "centers of attraction" for employable blacks who are either in the reserve areas now or might be lured back from the white-controlled big cities.

Some of this development is going into so-called "border industries" placed outside the black zones but near enough to draw black labor on a daily commuting basis. The government says at least 25 such industries have been set up since early 1961. There is one complex with six plants at Rosslyn near Pretoria.

Insofar as the decentralization program involves establishing industry within the Bantu reserves themselves, the road seems incredibly long.

It is as if a developed industrial nation, "White South Africa," were undertaking to lift up several underdeveloped nations—all within its own borders.

H. L. T. TASWELL, South Africa's ambassador to the United States, insisted in interviews that this "reverse tide" program is not faltering—as one report from Johannesburg asserted.

He declares that substantial financial commitment in various development and investment corporations is proof of the government's unwavering intent. Black leaders in the Transkei, the one already-self-governing Bantu reserve on South Africa's east coast, are said to be counting heavily on the promises made.

"If we tried to abandon this policy now," says Taswell, "I could only see trouble ahead." Yet the variety of problems involved in this colossal attempt to make racial separation viable is so great that skeptics continue to argue that the whole program must surely fall of its own weight.

A following report will examine the question further.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By Sophie Miller

From time to time A. J. Finley, of 61 Holt Street, Dumont, N. J. and cousin of Mrs. Hendry takes pen in hand and writes me a nice long letter. He writes a little at a time and then when he has some dozen pages he sends them to me, telling about old time Kingston and the Hudson as he remembered it. He is now over 80. His cousin cuts out and sends him this column. He saves them, reads them over and they give him a lead to his memories for his letters.

He writes for instance in a Feb. 1, 1962 column I wrote about windmills, but he does not remember any on shore and then he goes on to say: "But the Knickerbocker boats were, what we called in those days, two steamers, as both bow and stern were the same, like the bow of all boats, and were the same as gunboats in the wars, called Iron Clads. They had windmills on their upper decks to pump out the water from the hold. When they left from upstate, they were loaded with tons of ice for New York City, so on the way down they were turned to get the wind in the sails. I see in the letter he also remembers the Thompsons, and son, Frank, and Mr. and Mrs. Ennist.

He was reading another of my columns dated Jan. 31, 1962 in which I mention oatmeal in the drinking water, especially in hot weather like we are having this May 1965. He writes: "Yes, it is true that it was the custom of boatmen on the Hudson River to put oatmeal in the water especially after we left the dock in tow, before we got down as far as the Esopus Light, that was where all the boats pumped the water from the river for the entire trip to New York and return. Most all the boats: cement, stone, ice and even the tugs used this water, but for the casks, for drinking purposes, it had oatmeal in them. We had a 50 gal. wine barrel on deck on the stone-barge, and always had a couple pounds of oatmeal in it, and ice from the ice-barges of which there was always one in tow."

Mr. Finley of Dumont, N. J. and formerly of Kingston further writes: "There was no boatman on the Hudson who did not know that between the Rondout light and the Esopus light, that there was spring water, between those two points. Perhaps it is that way, even now, as on the flats of Port Ewen. You could row in amongst the tall grass and see the cool water bubbling up through the sand, and that is where we got our fish at high tide." He also added, "I wonder if it is that way now,

Johnson on Domingo—Ending Misconceptions

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It seems incredible that erroneous impressions should have been spread about what the United States did or failed to do before landing Marines in the Dominican Republic.

It seems strange, too, that the United States has been charged with taking an impulsive action without consulting the Latin American countries, when it now turns out that the government here did consult at least 14 of the Latin American countries and even the Peace Committee of the Organization of American States before the landing of any military units. But the idea widely conveyed was that the Administration acted impetuously and did not take the trouble to consult beforehand with any of the Latin American countries.

President Johnson told the whole story of the Dominican Republic episode in great detail to his news conference on Tuesday. What he said in an impromptu answer to a question from a reporter at the press conference is particularly significant. It reads as follows:

"Many months ago we became aware of the increasing tensions there, and the difficulties that would likely confront us. On the Sunday before we went in there on Wednesday, we asked the Ambassador, who had already come to Washington at our calling, to leave his family home and come here to meet with us. Ambassador Bennett met with us on Monday. We rushed him back to the Dominican Republic and set in motion certain steps."

"First was to attempt to obtain a ceasefire. Second was to take the precautionary steps necessary to protect approximately 5,000 Americans, as well as thousands of other nationals if that should be required. We moved our ships up there on Sunday."

"The Ambassador arrived there on Monday. He talked to various leaders. We did all we could to bring about a ceasefire in cooperation with the papal nuncio and others who were active on the scene. On Wednesday at noon, it became apparent that danger was lurking around the corner, and the Ambassador gave us a warning in a cable about 1 o'clock. We had met on Tuesday, and we had met on Sunday, and we had met on Wednesday, and we had met on Wednesday—on Sunday on which we did not issue any handouts. During that period—I think from the time we were notified on Saturday until we intervened on Wednesday—we spent a good part of both day and night giving our attention to this matter, from moving the ships up to making the final decision."

"I had 237 individual conversations during that period and about 35 meetings with various people. Finally, on Wednesday afternoon at 4 something, we got another warning that we should have a contingent plan ready immediately, and a little before 6 o'clock we got a plea, a unanimous plea—from the entire country team made up of the Ambassador, CIA director, USA, Army, Navy and Air Force—to land troops immediately to save American lives.

"Of course, we knew of the forces at work in the Dominican Republic. We were not unaware that there are Communists that were active in this effort. But 99 per cent of our reason for going in there was to try to provide protection for these American lives and the lives of other nationals. We asked our Ambassador to summon all our people immediately to the hotel—to put them in one control group."

"Men were running up and down the corridors of the Ambassador Hotel (Santo Domingo) with tommyguns shooting out windows, through the roof, and through the closets, our citizens were under the beds and in the closets trying to dodge this gunfire. Our Ambassador, as he was talking to us, was under his desk. We didn't think we had much time to consult in any great detail more than we had talked about up to that time, but we did make the announcement about 8 o'clock and immediately asked the OAS for an urgent meeting the next morning."

The President, in answering another question at his news conference, took occasion to demolish the misconception that has a risen concerning the so-called "Johnson Doctrine"—as if something new had been devised. Actually, the United States was merely following its traditional position. He said:

"I am afraid that the people that have branded the Johnson Doctrine were unfamiliar with the fact that the nations of this hemisphere have repeatedly made it clear that the principles of Communism are incompatible with the principles of the inter-American system. President Kennedy enunciated that on several occasions. The OAS itself has enunciated that. I merely repeated it."

Mr. Johnson also discussed the nature of the Communist activity in the Dominican Republic as follows:

"Their presence (in Santo Domingo) is still noted hour by hour. Their effectiveness is still observed. From day to day, we see their handiwork in the Dominican Republic and elsewhere throughout the world. Particularly in the propaganda field."

But will the explanation by the President of United States policy in the Dominican Republic overtake the misinterpretations that have been so widely circulated in recent days?

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacques Barzun, educator and essayist, has been meditating recently on the vast popularity of modern spy literature — specifically Ian Fleming's James Bond books and John Le Carré's "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold."

He concludes that "the soul of the spy is somehow the model of our own; his actions and his trappings fulfill our unsatisfied desires."

Writing in "The American Scholar" magazine, Dr. Barzun finds that the reader readily identifies with the character who has the right to kill in line of duty.

"The advantage of being a spy as of being a soldier is that there is always a larger reason — a reason of state — for making any little scruple or nastiness shrink into insignificance," he noted.

The author, perhaps, is not much of a student of television for it would have been difficult to resist comment on all of its weekly heroes with similar license to kill.

There are, of course, the agents of "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." who dispatch villains on a wholesale basis each week (this week, the intrepid fellows blew up a whole mountain fortress full of badguys) and "Secret Agent," who rarely permits the heavies to escape with their lives.

There are also the soldier-heroes — the infantrymen of "Combat" who knock off at least a platoon of Nazis a week, and the brave Air Force boys of "12 O'Clock High" with their bombing missions and sky duels.

Dr. Barzun suggests further that our interest in cloak-and-dagger stories is based on something "older and deeper than our anxieties of the cold war" — the most often-heard excuse for enjoying so-called "escape" literature. By the same token, then, perhaps we television fans watch these adventure stories — myths which give the illusion of reality — to calm our fears by their weekly demonstrations that dangers and difficulties "yield to technique."

TV Alleviates Boredom for Zoo Gorillas

NEW YORK (AP) — Gorillas at the Bronx Zoo enjoy watching kiddy cartoons on television.

What's more, the zoo TV ratings show that the gorillas prefer action-type shows.

The TV viewers are Pili-Pili, a 6-year-old male mountain gorilla; Sumaili, a female mountain gorilla of 17; Mumbo, a 15-year-old lowland male gorilla; and Oka, a 15-year-old female lowland. All come from the Congo area.

The zoo installed a 16-inch television set outside their cages last winter to alleviate boredom while they are inside. The gorillas, their nerves on edge, had taken to bickering among themselves. They would pace their cages, yawn and stretch. The experiment was somewhat of a success.

Joseph A. Davis Jr., the zoo's curator of mammals, said: "We found that our gorillas do pay attention to it (TV), and it

Shriver May Be Shorn of One Federal Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sargent Shriver would have to throw one of his hats away if the Senate has its way.

The late President John F. Kennedy's brother-in-law wears two in the Johnson administration: director of the Peace Corps and director of what President Johnson calls his "war on poverty."

Wednesday in passing a $115-million Peace Corps authorization, the Senate attached an amendment saying the director "shall hold no other federal office of equivalent rank."

The amendment could be knocked out later along the legislative road, but if it stands Shriver would have to choose between his two jobs.

It is known that he has recommended to Johnson a successor as Peace Corps director. He has replied to inquiries about his dual assignment by saying he does the best he can and serves at the President's discretion.

A millionaire, Shriver draws his Peace Corps salary — $28,500 — but not the $30,000 salary authorized for director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Senate acted late

Wednesday at a sparsely attended session just before passing by voice vote the $115-million authorization to put 15,110 volunteers in the field or in training by August 1966. The amendment was offered by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and accepted by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., floor manager for the bill. It was adopted by voice vote.

Shriver was not available for comment on Wednesday's Senate vote.

Directs Nonmusical

NEW YORK (AP) — For his first nonmusical directing stint on Broadway, Gower Champion has selected a play written by the librettist for two of the tune shows which he staged. "He to Hecuba," slated for premiere next fall, is the work of Michael Stewart, who wrote the plots for "Bye Bye Birdie" and "Carnival." The drama, which concerns a traveling theater troupe, is being sponsored by Edward Padula.

Virgin Islanders Give First Lady Warm Welcome

By FRANCES LEWINE. CHARLOTTE AMALIE, St. Thomas, V.I. (AP)—This tropic island gave Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson a warm welcome on her first visit here and the governor added "the keys to our hearts."

In Emancipation Gardens where slaves were freed more than a century ago, a crowd of about 7,000 turned out to cheer the First Lady as she noted "the impressive way equality was translated into reality in these islands."

Mrs. Johnson is here to make a commencement address to night at the first graduation of the College of the Virgin Islands. She aimed to get a few days vacation.

Banners in the streets of Charlotte Amalie, the capital of this island of some 40,000 persons, proclaimed "Welcome Mrs. Johnson" as she drove from the airport in a white convertible. Youngsters ran alongside.

Real Bargain

In the five-acre palm-fringed gardens, a steel band greeted her with calypso strains. Hatless in the tropic sun, wearing a peach linen suit with a gray print scarf at the neck, she smilingly told the crowd what a bargain the United States got when it purchased the islands from Denmark in 1917 for $25 million.

"We have only to look at last year's cash register," Mrs. Johnson said, "for in one year alone the Virgin Islands bought $70 million worth of goods from the states."

She relayed greetings from the President and said this was her first trip here, "but I already know it won't be my last."

A four-year-old girl gave her a bouquet of native flowers. Impressed, Mrs. Johnson later tried to identify them and Mrs. Ralph Paiewonsky, wife of the governor, came to the rescue by pulling out of her purse and presenting a book on the island's flowers.

To Bear Plaque

Gov. Paiewonsky told Mrs. Johnson a bandstand to be erected where she spoke will bear a plaque commemorating her appearance.

Paiewonsky said this island which has traditionally opened its doors to all peoples has no locks so it couldn't give her the key to the city.

"Instead we give you the keys to our hearts," he said.

Mrs. Johnson flew from Baltimore's Friendship Airport nonstop 1,600 miles to San Juan, P.R., Wednesday. Traveling "thrill class," she lunched on sandwiches and sat three abreast with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Taylor of Santa Fe, N.M.

But for the 25-minute hop from San Juan to St. Thomas, the airline put on a special flight and served a champagne snack.

Women Enfranchised

MONTREAL (AP)—For the first time in history, the Anglican Diocese of Montreal has opened its synod meetings to women delegates. The church's 106th annual synod voted 129-36 to allow the seating of women, until now only allowed to attend as spectators.

WEST SHOKAN NEWS

WEST SHOKAN — Cooperative plans by Shokan Lodge, No. 470, IOOF, are materializing for the annual memorial service Sunday, June 13, at 8 p. m. at the Olive Bridge Methodist Church. Principal speaker will be Past District Deputy Myron Ronk, a member of Sunshine Lodge, No. 929. He is also a minister at several rural Methodist churches. Mrs. Mabel Ordway is chairman of the Rebekah program committee.

A program of improvement by the Town of Olive Highway Department is getting underway along the West Shokan Heights Road which extends up the hill from Route 28-A, connecting with the High Point Road. This is a quick way to Kerhonkson at Head Acres corner.

The radio rally sponsored by the Rev. Osterhout Phillips at Shokan Reformed Church was a successful undertaking. A feature was the Bible reading by William Skilling of station WGHO and a solo by Mrs. Walter Smith. Refreshments were served in the church hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Kelder returned last week from their European trip. Among the many places of interest were the wine producing centers of France.

Lewis Kaufman is doing some logging at Ray Cruthers and Harlowe McLeans. He has regular employment at the Lewis Haulenbeck interests in Woodland Valley.

A new residence is under construction opposite Sheriff Claude Bell's property and the Maltby Hollow road.

Donald Bishop Jr., having completed his six months enlistment in the National Guard at Fort Dix, is now employed by Montgomery-Ward in the auto accessory department.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McRorty of the Broadhead Road recently returned home from a three weeks southern vacation trip.

The town clean-up drive sponsored by the Tongore Garden Club kept assigned town trucks operating May 24 and 25 picking up roadside placed junk.

A local happening of May 16, 1923 was the death of Mrs. William N. Simpson following a brief illness. Funeral services were at the Kerhonkson Methodist Church and were in charge of the Rev. C. F. W. Ahrens. Burial was in Pine Bush Cemetery. At the time of her death Mr. and Mrs. Simpson occupied the present home of Mr. and Mrs. Swan B. Brewster. Mr. Simpson was a well known saw mill operator of that era.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Bell, 86 and 83 years old respectively, of Maltby Hollow Road observed their 62nd wedding anniversary on May 26. The couple, both natives of the Watson Hollow area, were married at the Baptist parsonage in Phoenicia by the Rev. Mr. MacRea who was pastor of the Phoenicia and West Shokan churches. Mrs. Bell relates of the frightening experience they had during a shower on May 4 when their home was struck by a ball of lightning which caused considerable damage by the resulting fire and dense smoke. The fire ignited a sofa in a downstairs bedroom was kept under control by Mrs. Raymond Bell until the arrival of the West Shokan firemen.

Martin Eckert, 90, is supplying customers with stock nursery trees, also garden plants. His specialty is tomatoes.

Mrs. Carl Rassengren and granddaughter, Van Nessa Steen, were among those making the bus trip Monday to New York and the World's Fair.

At the 35th birthday anniversary of Olive Rebekah Lodge, No. 490, held June 2 in connection with the regular meeting, the ceremony of the exchange of colors from the outgoing to the incoming officials was featured. The new District Deputy President is Mrs. Anna Lawrence of Shokan. Refreshments were served. On June 23, the Rebekah degree will be conferred on a new membership class. June 5 is the date for the annual pilgrimage to the IOOF Home in Ithaca. It will be attended by a large Ulster District delegation.

Friday members of the Tongore Garden Club decorated the Olive Memorial Plaque opposite the town building in preparation for the Memorial Day.

Mrs. Selma Reitmair relates many interesting experiences connected with her air trip around the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil H. Winchell of West Hurley were recently callers on the west side. Maurice Goldberg, one of the Republican candidates for surrogate, spoke last week at the Town of Olive Republican meeting at the Olive Bridge Firehall.

Mrs. Charles Wood was accompanied to Albany last Thursday by Mrs. R. Rasengren where they visited Charles Wood at the Veterans Hospital. He had been a patient there nearly three weeks. His condition is said to be improved. Mrs. Wood also made the trip on Tuesday which was the occasion of her birthday. She received a number of cards from many friends and neighbors.

SAN FRANCISCO'S ORIENTAL ACCENT

Annual Chinese New Year parade attracts hundreds of thousands of spectators. Figures are made in Hong Kong.

To get a glimpse of the Far East, look to the West Coast. San Francisco, a truly international city, combines the eastern charm of the orient with the streamlined features of a modern metropolis.

Chinatown, still a major tourist attraction, now shares the spotlight with Japanese town as the sons of Nippon play an increasingly important role in the city's culture.

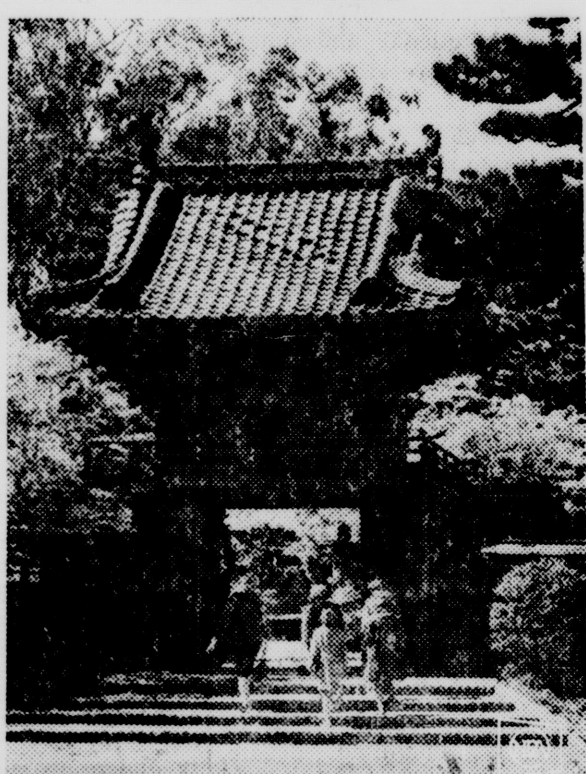

Only in San Francisco does east meet west with such dynamic impact. To see San Francisco is to view the wonders of the Far East on California's coast.

Modernistic pagoda will adorn cultural and trade center in redevelopment project in heart of city's Japantown.

Chinatown residents catch up on the day's news in the window of one of the city's five Chinese language papers (photo left) while visitors explore the wonders of a Japanese tea garden, nestled near De Young Museum in Golden Gate Park. The park has been a favorite spot for tourists for 70 years.

Martin Elected To 14th Term as CSEA President

James P. Martin, retired member of the Kingston Police Department, was elected to his 14th term as president of the Ulster County Chapter, Civil Service Employees Association.

Others elected were vice presidents, Albert Ochner and Mrs. Dorothy Lacey; treasurer, Fred Paulus; financial secretary, Martin Kelly; secretary, Florence Fennelly; chapter representative, Martin; members of the Board of Directors, Grace Wojciechowski, William Paulus, Margaret Cade, Harold DeGraff, Melvin Passer and George McDonald, and chapter delegates, Martin and Kelly.

Declines Comment

Leon Studt, who was reelected a member of the Board of Directors, resigned that position and the post of chapter representative immediately after the election. He declined comment today when asked why he resigned. However, Studt was a center of controversy last January when as secretary of the public works unit of the CSEA he was charged of "wrongfully" representing himself as spokesman in a statement on proposed "career plan" pay raises and benefits sought by police and firemen.

In other association business, Mrs. Lacey announced that she was resigning her position as social worker in the Ulster County Welfare Department effective Sept. 30 after more than 24 years service, to accept a position as second and third grade teacher in the Malden Elementary School System. However, she will continue as its publicity chairman.

Other Matters

In other business at the recent chapter meeting, members discussed Civil Service in the Kingston Consolidated School District. They said that some people were given a raise of $100, others $200 and some people didn't receive any raise. A letter was forwarded to the Board of Education about this situation.

Civil Service and the Board of Public Works were also discussed. It was reported that some people are being changed from one job title to another job title and are being given increases in salary without following Civil Service regulations. Salaries were discussed at length.

A letter was written to Supervisor Charles Relyea of Hurley, and chairman of the Salary Committee of the Board of Supervisors requesting an appointment with the Salary Committee and the Salary Committee of the local CSEA Chapter to discuss its 21 Point program which accords that a permanent Salary Schedule be approved by the Board of Supervisors.

The next meeting of the CSEA Chapter will be June 28.

Malone Man Killed

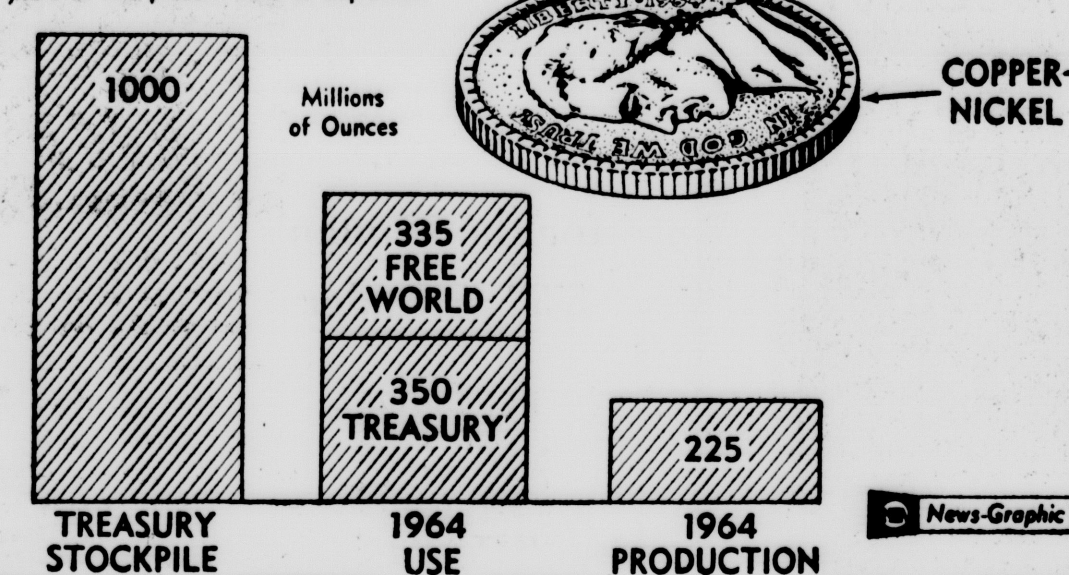

MALONE, N.Y. (AP)—An 80-year-old man, Matthew F. McGillicuddy, was killed Wednesday when he fell from the tractor he was driving and was run over by one of its wheels.

The Coinage Dilemma

With the Treasury's silver stockpile down to one billion ounces, the United States is confronting the first change in the content of its coins since 1792. The three likeliest replacements for the present 90 per cent silver dime, quarter, half-dollar and dollar are:

- A three-layered "sandwich" coin with silver skin and copper core.
- A three-layered coin with copper core and combination copper-nickel skin.
- All coins like the present nickel, a copper-nickel combination.

Reason for the silver crisis is that U.S. and Free World coinage and industrial use of silver far exceeds production. U.S. Treasury stockpiles which have been filling the gap face exhaustion within a few years at the present rate of depletion.

Gemini Twins Get A-OK for ...

Johnson, watched on live television. The families of the two Air Force majors also were tense spectators.

McDivitt's wife, Patricia, and children, Michael, 8, Lynn, 6, and Patrick, 4, and White's wife, also named Patricia, and children, Edward III, 11, and Bonnie Lynn, 8, watched their TV sets at Houston.

Upon achieving orbit, McDivitt and White immediately began checking all spacecraft systems — communications, control, oxygen, life support and others — to make certain all were in working order for the vital rendezvous and emergency tests ahead.

The astronauts reported half-way through the initial orbit that all systems were in excellent shape.

McDivitt at Controls

Ground stations closely monitored medical, engineering and other data from Gemini 4 as it whirled overhead at about 17,500 miles an hour. McDivitt, 35, steered the spacecraft and tested control systems, while White, 34, handled the other checkout chores.

There was never any trouble today with the Titan. And there was nothing ever reported wrong in the space capsule or with the astronauts. Only the electrical problem prevented an on-time blastoff.

The countdown started ahead of schedule, then was right on the button when the electrical malfunction occurred.

The astronauts took the delay coolly and were reported to have catnapped.

McDivitt and White agree with director Kraft on the main purposes of the mission.

We are the first step in the long-duration phase — of extending man's livability in space, said McDivitt.

Long Duration Vital

White said he considers his planned exit a vital step toward moon and interplanetary trips during which astronauts will have to work in space. But he added: "The most important thing in the flight is long duration. The four days are a step forward toward the two-week flights we plan in the Gemini program."

Medical monitors around the world will watch closely for any signs of mental or physical deterioration which could prompt a quick decision to end the mission.

The longest previous U.S. space flight was the 34 hour, 20 minute ride by astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr. that concluded the Mercury program. He nearly fainted after leaving his Faith 7 capsule and doctors said he suffered from a condition known as orthostatic hypotension—which is marked by pooling of the blood in the lower legs, rapid pulse and lowered blood pressure.

The condition generally is believed caused by the weightless world of space where there is no gravity to make the heart and blood-pumping system function normally. However, Dr. Charles A. Berry, NASA's chief of medical operations, believes it may be caused by a combination of factors in the space environment — weightlessness, fatigue, cramped quarters and lack of proper exercise.

Will Use Stretch Cord

To learn if exercise will help, the astronauts planned to work out with a stretch cord to stimulate arm, leg and back muscles. For comparison, McDivitt was to exercise once a day and White three times.

Soviet Cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky holds the present space-flight endurance record of just shy of five days. Soviet scientists said he suffered temporary after effects of low blood pressure, fatigue, slight emotional and balance instability and changes in bacterial and biochemical properties. Since the Soviet space flights have been limited to one day as the Soviets have sought solutions to the problems.

Cosmonaut Alexi Leonov, the only previous man to step into space from an orbiting vehicle, reportedly suffered slight disorientation in trying to relocate his Voskhod 2 ship. White said he hoped to move more slowly and use both the Gemini 4 and the Titan 2 second stage as reference points.

Will Still Trail Soviet

Even if all goes well, the United States still will trail the Soviet Union in the over-all manned space race. Dr. George Mueller, NASA associate administrator for manned flight, said: "It's going to be some time before we equal all the activities the Russians are capable of doing."

It generally is believed the U.S. trails the Soviet Union by one to two years in the moon race. However, American officials are counting on the Gemini program, early earth orbit flights in the Apollo lunar program and the giant Saturn 5 rocket now under development to eventually overcome the Soviet edge and place U.S. astronauts on the lunar surface in 1969 — before the Soviets.

The present Soviet edge is based on a larger booster developing 1.4 million pounds of booster thrust, compared to 430,000 for the Titan 2. The United States has fired a smaller booster, the Saturn 1, but it is not qualified for manned flights yet and won't be for two years.

The big Soviet rocket has enabled that nation to orbit larger manned spacecraft, with up to three passengers. The cosmonauts have logged a total of 507 hours, 29 minutes of weightless flight. Up to today the United States has 65 hours, 44 minutes. The McDivitt-White combined

Deadlock About Disability Looks Less Solid Now

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hopes were improved today for a break in the deadlock between House and Senate over a proposed constitutional amendment dealing with presidential disability.

The leaders of the House and Senate committees trying to work out a compromise were reported in agreement — but there is still the matter of getting the other conferees to agree.

The issue that is threatening to kill an amendment that both the Senate and House passed overwhelmingly, is a time limit the House imposed on Congress to decide who is president when a vice president challenges the right of a once-disabled president to resume office.

The House said 10 days was enough, after which the president would automatically get his job back if Congress had still not acted.

The Senate, which prizes its custom of unlimited debate, fixed no time limit. But it said Congress should proceed immediately to consider the vice president's challenge. In both bills, it would require a two-thirds vote to uphold the challenge.

Two meetings between the conference committees left dispute unresolved, with prospects for agreement so dim no new meetings were scheduled.

But the American Bar Association, which has been pushing for such an amendment for years, refused to give up. Its efforts produced an informal meeting Wednesday between Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Sen. Birch E. Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate subcommittee that wrote the bill.

They are reported to have agreed on a 21-day limit for congressional action.

Celler's House colleagues are believed ready to go along with the change, but Bayh could have a problem bringing his fellow conferees around.

Celler is reported to have told Bayh 21 days is as far as he will go and that no other meetings will be scheduled unless Bayh can swing the other senators around to the time limit.

Bridge Builders

KOPER, Yugoslavia (AP)—For 200 years the Antonac family has built bridges in the Yugoslav peninsula of Istria. The trade is handed down from father to son.

Jure Antonac and his son have built 270 wooden bridges.

Celery seeds do wonders for colds. Add a couple of teaspoons to enough slaw for six portions.

Had Luxury of Airlock

The large Voskhod provided the luxury of an airlock so that the entire cabin was not depressurized before Leonov stepped into space. The Gemini 4 will have to be completely depressurized, exposing both astronauts to the fierce vacuum more than 100 miles high.

Also, Leonov had a self-contained life-support pack that would have enabled him to switch from one spacecraft to another if necessary. His tether was to keep him from floating away. White carries the oxygen and electrical power needed for him and his space suit systems alive. But the Soviets have not yet maneuvered a cosmonaut craft or conducted rendezvous.

During their space voyage, McDivitt and White also were to conduct several photographic, scientific and engineering experiments. They also were to determine the best means of establishing compatible work, sleep and eating cycles in space and study problems of personal hygiene.

Outer Space Completely Opposite to Atmosphere That Surrounds the Earth

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS
AP Aerospace Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Outer space is an alien, hostile environment, completely opposite to the earth's atmosphere.

For man to travel in outer space, he must take a little piece of the earth's environment with him. That is where the space suit comes in.

When astronauts step out into the vast void of the universe, the only thing to keep them from popping like a bubble is the space suit.

The garment also acts as a shield, bouncing away lethal specks of dust, micrometeorites flashing through the sky at incredible speed. Radiation from the sun could kill a man in an eyelid's twinkling. The suit protects against this danger.

This little world weighs 314 pounds, has 21 layers of fabric, connections for oxygen hoses, communication lines and medical monitoring circuits and costs $28,000.

Once a man gets inside the garment, he is in a world all his own, providing all his life support equipment is working.

To make sure the suit works perfectly, technicians have bombarded it with a micrometeorite gun, firing tiny silvers of plastic at more than 25,000 miles per hour into the fabric.

Layers of aluminized mylar, felt and dacron repel the speeding plastic, guaranteeing safety to the astronaut.

The helmet has been beefed up with two additional visors. One for micrometeorite protection and the other to shut out the sun's undiminished brightness in outer space.

Bullets have bounced off the strong plastic, called Lexan. It is 30 times stronger than plastic used in airplane canopies.

To protect against the sun's bright rays, the outer visor has been tinted a blue-green. The middle visor has a gold tint to control the heat and also is made of Lexan.

The innermost visor shuts tight to the suit and keeps the pressure inside the garment. It was befooled up after Virgil I. Grissom's visor shattered during re-entry March 23.

For astronaut Edward H. White's projected space walk, a special pair of gloves were developed to fit over the regular pair attached to the space suit. The over-gloves were designed to protect against thermal heating. They were tested as a man held, for five minutes without being burned, an object that had been heated to 250 degrees.

Edward L. Hays, chief of crew systems at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the suit had been tested in every conceivable way.

The suit is tailored for the individual astronaut. Gloves and helmet can be removed when the space capsule is fully pressurized.

Mintz, Kaplan Are Released Without Bail on Charges

NEW YORK (AP)—Hyman E. Mintz, state assemblyman from Sullivan County, and Carl Kaplan, former police chief of Fallsburgh, have been released without bail after being arrested on charges of conspiring to bribe a detective assigned to Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan's Office.

An indictment against Mintz and Kaplan charges that a $3,000 bribe was to have been paid to the New York City detective in connection with a grand jury investigation of a race track license deal.

Mintz, 56-year-old Republican, and Kaplan, 52, were arrested Wednesday at their South Fallsburgh homes by detectives from Hogan's office.

Because Mintz is suffering from a heart ailment, he was arraigned in the Sullivan County Court House at Monticello. County Judge Benjamin Newberg released him to await further proceedings in the State Supreme Court in Manhattan next month.

Mintz long has been sought as a grand jury witness here in the investigation of an alleged $100,000 race track license bribe plot.

Kaplan was arraigned before State Supreme Court Justice Samuel J. Silverman here. Kaplan pleaded innocent and was paroled to await trial.

The charges are misdemeanors, punishable by up to a year in jail.

River Marathon Slated June 13

ALBANY—The annual Hudson River Marathon—one of the most demanding outdoor motor boat races in the country—will be held on June 13.

The run of approximately 135 miles is sponsored by the Castle-ton Boat Club of Castleton-on-Hudson, N. Y. in cooperation with the New York State Conservation Department, Division of Motor Boats.

For the first time since its inception, the marathon will be televised. Chairman Russ Van de Wal said the National Broadcasting Company would show the race on its program "Sports in Action."

"We hope this will be one of the most successful races we ever have had," Van de Wal said. "We believe that most of the top drivers in the country will be here."

Plan Six Classes

Six classes of races will be held—E (40-49.99 cubic inch displacement) and 13 foot minimum length), F (50-59.99 and 14), H (70-79.99 and 15), I (80-89.99 and 15-6), JJ (twin engine and 15) and U (unlimited and 13).

The boats are standard production models with single or twin standard production outboard motors and two persons per boat.

"We like to think of this as a family marathon," said Van de Wal, "so we have set a minimum age of 14 years for kids if they are accompanied by a parent or guardian. Furthermore, by encouraging youngsters, we think we are helping train the champions of tomorrow."

The finish line will be off Edgewater, N. J. Entries close June 8 and the drivers' meeting is scheduled for June 12 at the Thruway Motel, Albany. Starting times will be determined at the drivers' meeting.

Fixing Heaters Was No Job for One Astronaut

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—One of the reasons Maj. James A. McDivitt Jr. is riding around the world in a Gemini space capsule is that he didn't like riding around to repair water heaters.

The 36-year-old astronaut's father, a Consumers Power Co. engineer, recalled that when the family lived in Kalamazoo in the late 1940s his son got a job fixing water heaters after graduating from Kalamazoo Central High School.

After a year on the job, his father asked McDivitt what he had learned.

"One thing," the father said, "I want to be the man on the other side of the desk."

The McDivitt family moved here soon afterward and young McDivitt enrolled in Jackson Junior College.

After two years at Jackson, he joined the Air Force and went to Korea. He entered the University of Michigan in 1957, graduated in 1959 — while still in the Air Force — and took a bachelor's degree in aeronautical engineering.

McDivitt specializes in design and development of guidance and navigational systems, while his companion in space, Maj. Edward H. White II, specializes in design and development of flight control systems. Both are jet pilots and test pilots.

McDivitt, whose family lived in Chicago before moving to Michigan, flew 145 missions during the Korean War. He is married to the former Patricia Hays of Cleveland. They have three children, Michael, 7, Ann Lynn, 5, and Patrick, 4.

South Baptists Reject Bid for Rome Observer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Southern Baptists, sticking to a past policy, still don't want an observer-delegate at the Second Vatican Council.

A move to send one was resoundingly defeated Wednesday night at the big denomination's 108th annual convention.

It would mean according "special recognition to beliefs we do not adhere to or teach," contended the Rev. Harry E. Welch of Chattanooga, Tenn., in opposing the idea.

By a show of hands, the huge assembly of a record 15,052 "messengers" voted the proposal down. Only a sprinkling of about 100 supported it.

The decision leaves Baptists as the only major Christian tradition in the world without an authorized observer at the Vatican Council, which goes into its fourth annual session next Sept. 14.

Before the start of the first one in 1962, the Baptist World Alliance declined a proffered invitation from Rome to send an observer. Southern Baptist representatives to the alliance opposed the bid.

Some other Baptist bodies favored it, however, including the American Baptist Convention (Northern), which last week urged reconsideration of the decision, and the sending of an observer.

Catholics See Danger

NEW YORK (AP) — With population in Latin America and Asia expected to double in the next 35 years, "such overwhelming growth will virtually wipe out efforts for socio-economic progress in the poorer nations and will generate pressures that breed human despair," says a group of Roman Catholic experts in a new book, "Population Growth — Threat to Peace?", published by P. Gets Year, Also Probation in Bogus Bill Case

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A man who asked for a prison sentence instead of probation received both — for passing counterfeit Canadian money in Plattsburgh.

Three Canadian women were placed on probation Wednesday in the same case.

Judge James T. Foley of Federal District Court sentenced Oscar Batts, 23, to a year and a day in prison and ordered two years' probation upon his release.

Batts, a native of New Orleans, formerly was stationed with the Air Force in Plattsburgh but had been living more recently in Montreal.

Batts' lawyer told the judge the defendant would prefer "to be incarcerated rather than have a long probation." The judge commented to Batts:

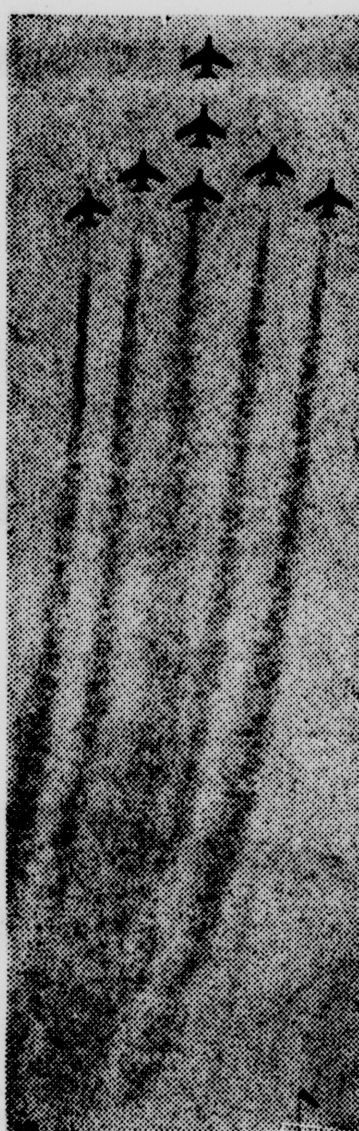

"You should realize the probation will help you pick yourself up again."

The women, placed on probation for two years each, were Miss Linda Thomas, 19, a certified practical nurse, Mrs. Ethel Villeneuve, 24, and Mrs. Rosella L. Butts, 20, all of Montreal.

All pleaded guilty May 3 to charges of possessing and passing counterfeit $20 bills.

No Corned Beef Sandwiches on Today's Jaunt

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II won't be taking any corned beef sandwiches with them on their four-day space jaunt.

James E. Webb, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has laid down the law — "quit horsing around."

Navy Lt. Comdr. John W. Young sneaked a corned beef sandwich aboard the Molly Brown spacecraft March 23 and offered it to Air Force Maj. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom while in orbit.

Gus took a few bites, laid it aside and forgot about it until the flight was over. Several congressmen raised a fuss with Webb at a hearing and Webb told lawmakers it wouldn't happen again. He agreed with the congressmen that such items raised a danger of bread crumbs fouling up sensitive equipment.

Gemini 4 Shot At-a-Glance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Launch time — 9 a.m. EST from Cape Kennedy, Fla.
Flight duration — 97 hours, 50 minutes; 62 orbits.

Spacecraft — Gemini 4, the second in the series of manned two-man capsules; 19 feet long with a blunt-end diameter of 7 1/2 feet.

Booster — Titan 2, a two-stage, liquid-fueled rocket 90 feet tall and 10 feet in diameter, developing a total of 530,000 pounds of thrust.

Astronauts — Air Force Majors James A. McDivitt, 35, commanding, and Edward H. White II, 34.

Objectives — To determine the effect of prolonged weightlessness and spaceflight on men and equipment; achieve rendezvous with another orbiting vehicle; perform extravehicular activities requiring White to climb out of the spacecraft and into the void of space; provide a controlled re-entry and training for astronauts who will fly in the Apollo man-to-the-moon program; conduct certain engineering and scientific experiments.

Space Twins Together Long Time Some Comparisons Of 2 Astros Eerie

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS
AP Aerospace Writer
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—James McDivitt and Edward White aren't really the twin stars of the Gemini constellation—they just fill the role better than anyone else.

Although the reference to the stars was made jokingly, White will be an earth satellite for the time he is out of his spacecraft floating through space at 17,500 miles per hour about 120 miles above ground.

Split Second Precision
The maneuver must be executed with split-second precision. A miscalculation by either man could end in tragedy.

But unlike most of the astronauts, the two Air Force majors' lives have been similar to the extent that some comparisons are eerie. Both of their wives are named Patricia. Each major has a daughter whose middle name is Lynn.

McDivitt and White first met at the University of Michigan in 1957 and except for a few months in 1960 have been together ever since.

"I know Jim so well I almost can tell what he's thinking before he does it and I think he's probably the same way with me," White, 34, said.

McDivitt sums up this feeling for White:

"We had specialty areas that were so closely related that they were really only one specialty to start with. We've been together a long time now and we've fought all our battles together. In my book I couldn't have been happier when we were announced as a team."

Both knew they would be pilots even as boys.

White was born into an Army family at San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 14, 1930. His father, now retired, is Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, who can fly everything from balloons to bombers.

Flew in Korea
McDivitt was born in Chicago, June 10, 1929. After he soloed as a young boy, his mother, Mrs. James McDivitt, Jackson, Mich., told him not to go up in the sky alone again.

McDivitt, a quick-smiling, quick-tempered Irish Catholic, started school at Jackson Junior College. After two years, in 1951, he joined the Air Force and was sent to Korea where he flew 145 combat missions and won three Distinguished Flying Crosses and five Air Medals.

White, a sandy-haired athlete, hopped out of the world, from Army base to Army base, until his father switched to the Air Force. He finished high school in Washington, D.C. and went on to West Point.

He changed to the Air Force after graduation.

Had Yen for Space
White got the yen to travel in space even before the first astronauts were chosen. He was with a fighter squadron in Germany. When astronaut qualifications were announced, White lacked test pilot training and an aeronautical engineering degree.

At about this time, McDivitt decided to finish his education for a degree in aeronautical engineering.

Both enrolled at the University of Michigan in September 1957. White to get a master's degree, and McDivitt a bachelor's.

McDivitt graduated first in his class. White, with another degree, had fulfilled another requirement for becoming an astronaut.

Both were assigned to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

After test pilot school, White's hopes for a space career seemed dashed. "It was one of the saddest moments of my life," White recalls. "They assigned me to a cargo flight test section. I thought I was done for."

"I looked around for the most interesting flying. It was flying weightless airplanes (KC135 cargo planes used to create weightlessness condition by making diving arcs)."

Accepted in 1962
He flew the training plane at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, about eight months.

McDivitt stayed on at Edwards, enrolling in the experimental test pilot's school.

Both applied for the nine astronaut jobs and were accepted Sept. 17, 1962, from more than 750 applications.

McDivitt married the former Patricia A. Haas of Cleveland, Ohio. They have three children, Michael, 8; Ann Lynn, 6; and Patrick W., 4.

White married the former Patricia E. Fiegen of Washington, D.C. They have two children, Edward, 11, and Bonnie Lynn, 9. His parents live in St. Petersburg, Fla.

White is a Methodist. He has had about 50 home towns but he says he considers Houston his home town now.

Both say their ultimate goal in the space program is to make the trip to the moon.

Lighter Church Music
ODHAM, England (AP)—The Church of England youth group here, known as the Church Army, has a new pamphlet called "Pop Goes the Hymn Tunes."

It was produced as part of the church's program to try out modern music in worship in this Hampshire village. The pamphlet gives suggestions on how 20th Century light church music can be used.

Dear Abby . . . Pros And Cons!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Forgive me for taking exception to your viewpoint of "invasion of privacy" regarding the lady who read her parents' love letters after their death.

Have you ever read the classic, "The Letters of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning"? And if Margaret Mitchell had not read her grandmother's diary, who would have written "Gone With the Wind"? If my great-grandmother had not examined the contents of her mother's trunk, a letter written by George Washington would have been destroyed.

I have saved my husband's love letters and valentines. Although my children may not be interested in reading them now, maybe after I die they will enjoy some of the sweet sentiments that are in my treasure chest.

"SENTIMENTAL"
DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column dealt with the same situation which I was recently faced with, and I would like to tell you how I handled it. My mother had made her home with me and my husband during her last years. I knew where she had kept her "love letters" from my father, who had preceded her in death by many, many years.

When Mother passed away, I did not read them. I felt as you, that they were private. Yet I could not bring myself to destroy those letters as I knew they must have been very precious to my mother or she would not have kept them for nearly 65 years. Before her funeral, I tied her "love letters" with a white ribbon and asked the undertaker if I might slip them into the casket to be buried with Mother. He said he thought it was a splendid idea, so I lifted the casket and placed them deep beside her body. I have always felt that I did what would have pleased my mother the most.

Yours very truly,
HELEN G.

DEAR ABBY: So you regard it as an "invasion of privacy" to read old love letters left behind by a woman who has died unless the writers have indicated during their lifetime that they wished them to be read?

If my parents had left me a legacy of love letters, I would have had them published. All

I got was a box containing their letters, which were filled with threats, bitter accusations, and ugly recriminations. With those letters were a divorce document, my mother's death certificate (marked "suicide") and my father's cancelled insurance policy. Sign me . . .

NO LOVE LETTERS
DEAR ABBY: The letter about "old love letters" and who has a right to read them reminded me of an experience I had back in World War 2. My buddy had a hobby of writing to girls and collecting their pictures. He had a boxful. He happened to be married, but he really wasn't a bad guy, Abby. He loved his wife, but when he wasn't with the one he loved, he loved the one he was with, if you get what I mean.

Well, his number came up in North Africa, and I lost the best buddy I ever had. When they put all his stuff together to send home to his wife, I made sure she wouldn't get anything that would scar her memory of him.

NO REGRETS
DEAR ABBY: Letters are personal property and belong to heirs—whether specifically willed or not—just like money, clothing or real estate. It could even be argued that heirs have a public and social obligation to examine all effects of the deceased including correspondence, because it might have a significant bearing on the welfare of those still alive. Who can say a "love letter" is only a love letter until he has examined it? Those who wish their correspondence to remain private should destroy it, or specify that it should be kept sealed for any period of time they choose. Yours, rationally,
G. H.

Hurley Vols Will Begin Fund Drive Saturday Morning

Hurley Volunteer Fire Company 1 will launch its annual fund drive Saturday, June 5. On that day, and for one week thereafter, Hurley firemen will distribute coin-saver cards to all residents of Hurley Fire District 1.

The fund drive, which will continue until Sept. 18, is intended to provide the means of continuing the civic activities programs of the fire company and to assist in the continuation of support to the many youth activities in the fire district. Among these are Hurley Little League, Babe Ruth League, Saturday Night Movies, baby-sitters course and Sparky's Fire Department.

While the 1964 Fund Drive results forced the curtailment of the Saturday night movies and the baby-sitters course, fund drive officials are optimistic as to the scheduling of these activities on the 1965-66 calendar. Continued interest in the activities of Sparky's Fire Department have assured this fire prevention program of reinforced support for the coming year.

Tangible results of this youth training program have drawn favorable comments from educators, parents and fire officials.

Fund drive chairman Kenneth Hopper commented on the coin-saver method of contributing, noting that these are actually saving cards, providing a convenient weekly "support" to those activities of interest to the contributor. He also reminded all residents of Hurley Fire District 1 that contributions are tax-deductible for income tax purposes.

Those assisting Chairman Hopper are Charles Goble, Lloyd Littlefield, Walter Portz and all members of Hurley Volunteer Fire Company 1. Initial responses to the 1965 Fund Drive purpose provide an optimistic outlook for the continuation and expansion of the Civic Activities program for 1965-66.

More Air Exchange

LONDON (AP) — Sir Hugh Greene, director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation said on return from a trip to Moscow and Leningrad that there are to be more exchanges of radio and television programs between Britain and Russia in the future.

The greatest interchange, he said, would be in the field of science and education.

In Moscow he had talks with the heads of the Russian Broadcasting Services.

Albany Action On Legislation

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has a fresh stamp of disapproval ready today for the latest Democratic plan to raise the state minimum wage from $1.25 to $1.50 an hour.

The bill was dispatched Wednesday to Rockefeller, who vetoed the first measure passed by the Democrats and has promised to reject the new one saying it would drive industry from the state.

Assembly approval of the wage bill was one of the highlights in action on legislation Wednesday. In other developments:

— The Senate approved and sent to the governor a bill that would provide for appointment of county welfare commissioners by boards of supervisors. The commissioners now are elected.

— A measure that would have relaxed restrictions on billboards along sections of the Thruway running through cities was voted down in the Senate, 28-26.

— A proposed state constitutional amendment that would reduce the residency requirement for all elections in New York State to three months won approval in the Senate and was sent to the Assembly.

— The Assembly defeated a Republican effort to force a vote on a bill to repeal the state's full-crew law regulating railroad employment. Democrats support labor's argument that, for safety's sake, a fireman is needed to ride in the diesel engines.

— The Assembly passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would increase state aid to school districts for adult education, evening and summer school programs by $6 million a year.

$33-Million Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $33-million ceiling has been placed on the Great Lakes-Hudson River waterway by a bill passed Wednesday in the Senate.

The measure goes back to the House for concurrence on Senate changes.

The Senate added $5 million to the Great Lakes-Hudson River waterway to complete work on the project.

Thick white sauce, thin onion soup and canned clams make an unusually good chowder; to gild the lily, add mushrooms.

Hollywood News and Views

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Patty Duke is making her first movie since her Academy Award triumph in "The Miracle Worker," and it's even more strenuous.

As Helen Keller in the film that won her the Oscar as best supporting actress of 1962, she had some knock-down battles with her fellow Oscar winner, Anne Bancroft.

Now young Patty is here for her first Hollywood film. Adapted from the play "Time Out for Ginger," it is now called plain "Billie." In it Patty runs the 100-yard dash and hurdles, pole vaults, dances the frug and sings four numbers.

When I saw Patty in her dressing room at Paramount, she was suffering from understandable fatigue — "I think it was the hurdles that did it." But she remained as cheerful as ever. "Billie" should be a breeze for her; she plays only one role.

For two seasons she has been playing a double role on a television series entitled "The Patty Duke Show."

"Billie" is being produced by Lawford for United Artists and marks the beginning of the Californiaization of Patty. Her television show was originally scheduled to be filmed here two years ago, but work laws for minors proved too stringent for a young actress who had to play dual roles. The series shifted to New York.

Now Patty is 18 and glad of it. Since she is out of the clutches of the welfare workers, Lawford and other production minds have decided to shoot the series in Hollywood.

Red Cross Gives Tips on Teaching Kiddies to Swim

Gerhard Klemm, water safety chairman of the Ulster County Red Cross Chapter, today said mothers can use a wading pool to begin teaching the small child to be comfortable and secure in the water. He listed these Red Cross instructions:

Start the process in the form of play. Sprinkle water on the child's head to help get the "feel" of the water.

When the child discovers that water on the head and face isn't "so bad," take the next big step: get the child to splash water into his face. Putting one's face into the water is a vital step in learning to swim.

A good game gets the face into the water with eyes open. Have the child pick up numbered rubber chips or something like this with face under water.

Now the child should be ready to try the prone float. The child lies, with face down and in water, on the bottom of the pool, arms extended forward, palms down. Mother's hand on the child's back gives reassurance. Soon the child should have enough confidence to be face down in pool by himself—some one must be by pool side by all means, however.

Proper breathing is the secret to swimming without tension. The beginner can practice in a wading pool by blowing a ball across the pool. This gets the mouth and chin in water.

The "tadpole" should be gaining enough confidence now to practice a modified flutter kick while in the position described above.

Now help the child be comfortable on the back. The mother's supporting hand under the neck will give a sense of security. Then the child tries it on the back alone, and finally—when the back position is comfortable—kicks freely.

A helpful booklet, Teaching Johnny to Swim, is available at the Ulster County Red Cross Chapter, 308 Clinton Avenue, for a nominal price, Klemm said.

The Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a member of the Ulster County Community Chest.

When a recipe calls for "green ginger," use fresh ginger root.

Strength Guides Partner's Bid

By JACOBY & SON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

In all situations when your partner has not limited his hand, the jump to game cannot be a stop bid. At the same time, it cannot be a very strong slam invitation.

South has only 11 high card points but his suit is such that he can play it even though his partner is void.

Once South jumps to four hearts, North has no problem about getting to six. He checks for aces because it is possible that South holds something like seven hearts to the king-queen-jack-ten and the king-queen-jack of diamonds.

Why doesn't North try for seven after South shows two aces? Because North knows that South would have made a stronger rebid than four hearts if he had held solid hearts and a side ace.

What form would this stronger rebid have taken? South might have merely bid three hearts and then gone past game irrespective of what North did. Or with those solid hearts and a side ace South might have taken immediate control and gone into a Blackwood routine over the two-spade response.

Expert play at six hearts would undoubtedly be different from ordinary play but every declarer would wind up making the slam.

The expert declarer would cash the ace of hearts at trick two and then take his diamond discard on one of dummy's top spades. He would be guarding as best he could against the possibility of the second spade being ruffed.

The ordinary declarer would take his diamond discard right away and then try the heart finesse.

4 From Local Rotary Are at National Parley

In Atlantic City for the 56th annual convention of Rotary International, world-wide service organization, are Dr. Dale Lake, president; Frank D. Hoonbeek, vice president; Past President William E. Ryland and Larry Bogart. They arrived Sunday, May 30, and are staying at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel.

The Rotary convention, which began May 30 and continues through today, brought to Atlantic City 15,000 Rotarians and members of their families from more than 126 countries in all parts of the world.

Official delegates to the convention will elect the office of Rotary's world leader for 1966-67, and will take action on proposed legislation. They also elect international officers for the year beginning July 1.

On Tuesday Adlai Stevenson, U. S. ambassador to the UN addressed the convention. Other speakers included Martin Sullivan, Archbishop of London, and Count Coudenhove-Kalergi, president of the Pan-European Union. Outgoing Rotary International President, Charles W. Pettengill of Greenwich, Conn., also spoke.

In the House of Friendship, a traditional feature of Rotary conventions, the Kingston delegates relaxed between convention sessions and talked with other Rotarians and their friends from Netherlands, Republic of China, Venezuela, Denmark and Germany.

"It's a real experience in international relations," they said, "to be gathered here with so many people from different lands and to learn about their homes."

Dominican Rebels Making Demands Before Election

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican rebels are demanding restoration of the 1963 constitution and creation of a new government before election of a new president and congress.

The rebel chief, Col. Francisco Caamaño Dano, Wednesday rejected the election formula proposed by the junta headed by Antonio Imbert Barrera. Caamaño termed the proposal "a fable."

The junta suggested elections be held as soon as possible under the supervision of the Organization of American States. The junta said all "democratic parties" should participate.

Brazilian troops of the Inter-American force extended the international security zone south and west Wednesday to include a key trouble spot — the National Palace. The smoothly conducted operation virtually eliminated the possibility of a serious clash between 350 junta troops that have been in the palace and rebel forces a block away.

The junta is leaving a token force of 25 men in the battered palace under an agreement reached by the opposing forces through OAS negotiations. The palace has not been in use since early in the revolt.

A three-nation OAS peace team prepared to leave Washington today for a new attempt to break the Dominican stalemate. It planned to meet with former Dominican President Juan Bosch in Puerto Rico in addition to negotiating with the junta and rebel factions in Santo Domingo.

The OAS has had no official contact with Bosch since his supporters last month ousted the civilian junta which Dominican military leaders installed after they overthrew Bosch in 1963.

Members of the OAS team are Ellsworth Bunker of the United States, Ilmar Perna Marinho of Brazil and Ramon Clairmont of El Salvador. Their mission was authorized early Wednesday in Washington by a special OAS conference on the Dominican crisis.

Peter Joseph Antello, Long Island, who was apprehended at Walker Valley and charged with having some 400,000 capsules of amphetamine in his possession, was sentenced to six months in the county jail. Charles Saccoman appeared for defendant.

He and his brother, Wayne Donald Ackert, and John Eugene Martin Sr., of New Paltz allegedly assaulted Trooper Gerald W. Zappalo of the Highland station. Martin also paid a $100 fine on his plea of resisting an officer and the case of Wayne Donald Ackert was adjourned to July 12 at 10 a.m. Charles Saccoman appeared for defendants.

Alan Nelson Canoles, Saugerties, who was charged with second degree forgery and petit larceny, under three indictments, entered a plea of guilty to petit larceny and was given a six months suspended jail sentence in each case. G. Thomas Rea appeared for Canoles.

Rain Bolsters

and the severe drought that is in its fourth year.

Reservoirs and streams remained low, and many communities continued restrictions on use of water.

Clouds of dust envelop the plowman working the dry soil of northeastern and central counties. Crops are not germinating for the same lack of moisture that brought drought - disaster designations to 35 of the 62 counties last year.

The situation is serious in much of the state. Another dry year will make it critical.

Drought is the spectre on this year's spring scene.

Winter's below-average snow blanket reduced the run-off that finds its way to reservoirs and wells.

Albany Supply Power

How dry is it? Take Albany, which normally has one of the nation's most ample water supplies.

The capital city, population 130,000, has a water reserve of 7.3 billion gallons, down from an average 13 billion.

Normal rainfall for the Capital District is 32 inches a year. But in 1964 the 21.55 inches was the lowest recorded by the Weather Bureau in 139 years. It is 3.92 inches below normal for this year already.

Rural areas without big reservoirs are hit hardest. Wells and streams are drying up even before summer begins, because underground water levels have shrunk.

Plug All Leaks

A number of communities have counterbalanced inadequate spring run-off with increased reservoir capacity and better distribution facilities. Leaks in dams have been plugged, saving millions of gallons.

In the last three years, the state Civil Defense Commission has loaned $250,000 worth of emergency water equipment — pipe, pumps, chlorinators, portable storage tanks, purifiers and other apparatus — to 55 communities. The commission has doubled its inventory of emergency equipment this year.

Conservation is the watchword. Take showers, not baths; folks are urged. Fix leaky plumbing. Don't wash automobiles. Don't fill swimming pools.

Hard on Forests

The dry weather has increased danger from forest fires. Unusually early fires in Southern Hamilton County swept 250 acres in May.

Near Auburn, rural dwellers may buy drinking water for $7 to $8 per 1,000 gallons delivered — if the householder has a container.

There is at least one benefit from the dry weather. It has spared survival of more of the spring crop of rabbits and game birds, many of which are drowned by spring rains in their low nests.

Four Are Still Hospitalized From 9W Crash

Four of the six persons injured Monday night as a result of the fire truck and car collision on Route 9W near the intersection of Old Stage Road, Town of Ulster, are still hospitalized.

Robert Mettscher, 47, of RD 4, Saugerties, who according to police reports suffered a back fracture and possible skull fracture, satisfactory condition.

Alexander Nunes, 13, of Esopus, scalp and left eye cuts, and Charlotte Nunes, 11, also of Esopus, forehead and scalp cuts, cerebral concussion, both good condition.

In Benedictine Hospital is Joseph B. Senor, 43, of Old Flatbush Road, Town of Ulster, who suffered abrasions of the right shoulder and lower back injuries, fair condition.

Treated and released were Stephen Conti, 33, of Dogwood Street, Town of Ulster, and Constantine M. Coisson, 54, of Esopus. Kingston State Police said that Senor was operating an Ulster Hose Company No. 5 fire truck with Mettscher and Conti, volunteer firemen aboard. Troopers said the truck was proceeding north on Route 9W responding to a car fire at Glenelg, and while negotiating a curve to the right, crossed into the southbound lane striking the left rear of a southbound car operated by Mrs. Coisson. Troopers said the truck rolled over twice. The Nunes children were passengers in the Coisson car. Troopers are still investigating the mishap.

CHICAGO (AP) — Aloys L. Bruckner, 63, treasurer of Swift & Co., meat packing firm, died Wednesday. He joined the Swift banking department in 1937 and was named treasurer in 1951.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Milton Frank, 64, board chairman of Wohl Shoe Co. died Tuesday after suffering a stroke. Frank joined the firm in 1919 and served as sales manager and executive vice president before being named board chairman.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Nannie Doss, 60, sentenced to life in prison 10 years ago for the death of her fifth husband, one of four she admitted feeding rat poison, died Wednesday of leukemia. South Africa's Afrikaners descend principally from a handful of European immigrants. Nearly one million persons bear the family names of only 40 original settlers.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market bounced back today from two sessions of sharp losses and was up substantially early this afternoon. Trading was active.

Key stocks held gains of fractions to more than a point on a broad front.

The list forged ahead from the start and reached its highest level in late morning. Thereafter, some of the best gains were sliced.

Brokers called it a technical recovery, although they also cited favorable House action on excise tax cuts and the reduction in the British bank rate as encouraging factors.

The trend was higher among motors, utilities, airlines, aerospace issues, nonferrous metals, tobacco and mail order-retails.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.2 at 313.3 with industrials up 2.4, rails off .1 and utilities up .7.

The Dow Jones industrial average — which had been up 6.18 at the end of the first hour — cut this rise to one of 3.30 at noon when the reading was 907.36.

Prices advanced in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Treasury bonds were stronger on news that the British government had cut its bank rate.

Present law requires such reports on holdings of $10,000 or more.

The final version of any Senate bill would have to go back to the Assembly for concurrence before the drawn-out ethics issue can be resolved.

Sewers was the assistant executive director of the Albany Home for Children from 1961 to the present time, where he was responsible for the development, supervision and coordination of medical, clinical, intramural school and pediatric services. His other related experiences have been as a supervisor of students for Syracuse University School of Social Work and teacher in the Evening Division of Russell Sage College.

The Children's Home has grown and progressed since its founding in 1876, when it was established to provide care and shelter for homeless children. In this modern complex world that care is needed more than ever, and today's children are referred to the home for other reasons than those found many years ago.

"Family tensions have increased, divorce rates are high, and we have many maladjusted children who need help in order to grow and develop into the good citizens they can and should be," a Home spokesman said.

The Children's Home has begun to work toward fulfilling this great responsibility. The year has seen the inception of a special class at the Home which is helping to prepare the boys who have been unable to adjust adequately to public schooling to eventually return to it successfully. The Home now has an addition to the original building which provides a gymnasium and offices, along with the classroom. By improving its facilities the Children's Home has now become an associate member of the Child Welfare League of America, a national organization dedicated to maintaining the highest possible standards for child care institutions.

Sewers, the board of managers, and the trustees are anxious for further progress at the Children's Home and are planning future projects that will give the children entrusted to them the very best care possible. The professional services are to be expanded, with emphasis on psychological rehabilitation. There is a very great need for a building to house the children who cannot be properly cared for in foster homes, as the existing Junior Cottage is totally inadequate. It was pointed out that additional classrooms are also needed, and an Inter-Faith Chapel where the spiritual and moral development of the boys could be fostered.

Sewers will reside at 134 Fair Street with his wife and family. Mrs. Sewers is the former Jean Armstrong, from Staten Island and Martha's Vineyard. She is a graduate of Keuka College and has previously been a Social Worker. They have three children, Elizabeth, 11, Tammy, 6, and Jacquelyn, 5.

Following this, Siewers was a School Social Worker in the Bethlehem Central School Professional Services Unit, providing services to six schools and serving as a consultant to administrative and teaching personnel with a professional team of consulting psychiatrist, clinical psychologist, remedial reading specialist and speech therapist.

In 1957 he became director of Social Work at the Albany Home for Children, where he was responsible for intake, casework treatment and coordination of the consultative treatment and program planning aspects of the department. Siewers was appointed director of Clinical Services at this institution in 1960, and was concerned with establishing and maintaining proper relationships and communication with members of the staff, community agencies and interested groups.

School Board Gives Reasons For Site Choices

NEW PALTZ—In preparation for the bond issue vote on the new high school the New Paltz School Board has issued the following statement on why they are allowing the public to choose the site for the school and what criteria they used in picking the sites:

The two sites which the public is being asked to express a preference for are the Jenkins site on DuBois Road and the Kauder site on Mountain Road and Springtown Road. The vote on the bond issue and the site will be on June 10. A public hearing for information and discussion will be held Tuesday, June 1 at 9 p. m. in the New Paltz High School Auditorium.

The reason the board is letting the people choose which site they want is that in recent bond issue votes the people expressed strong desire to choose the site. The board feels that both sites would be excellent for a high school.

The criteria the site committee used in picking the sites were:

A minimum of 50 acres to allow enough buffer area to sustain a relatively quiet and, thus, academic operation and to allow enough room to position the buildings that land versus building ratio is in keeping with the New Paltz area. The ultimate building will accommodate 1,800 students.

Bank Rate Cut

LONDON (AP)—The Bank of England rate, which sets the pattern for interest charges in the sterling bloc, was cut today from 7 to 6 per cent.

The 7 per cent rate had been in effect since Nov. 23, when the Labor government jumped it from 5 per cent in an attempt to bolster the pound sterling by encouraging the investment of foreign funds in Britain.

However, the high rate dampened down borrowing for business expansion and housing mortgages. The government had been anxious to reduce it as soon as possible.

When you are preparing tomato soup, you might like to season the tomato juice used with bay leaf, celery tops, sliced onion peppercorns and a whole clove or two.

The land should be as nearly flat as possible; as free of rock as possible and should contain a stream of sufficient flow to carry off affluent from sewage disposal plant. This stream must meet the county board of health requirements.

The site should be accessible and should provide safe and healthful conditions for the pupils, freedom from disturbing noises, obnoxious odors, and traffic hazards, and should have pleasant surroundings.

The subsoil should provide good drainage, and the contour of the land should be slightly convex with the high point at the position of the building. Both sites must meet these requirements.

The following statement comes from the state publication on School Site Standards: "For a high school a central location is not nearly so important (as for an elementary school). It is becoming customary for a district to select a high school site rather remote from the center of population. Acreage is considered much more important than a central location."

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Decent Literature Group Starts Fund To Combat Smut

Saugerties Citizens for Decent Literature started a fund to fight pornography. It was announced at last week's meeting of the group held in First Congregational Church.

Chairman Karl Pietkiewicz announced that several donations had been received. He said the fund will permit the committee to intensify its work.

Mrs. Elfride Geskie was named treasurer to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Donald Neff, who was transferred out of state by his employer.

The committee is developing plans for a workshop headquarters to be headed by the executive committee. The plan was formulated because of requests for material in the fight against pornography. Under the plan SCDL will become a research center capable of meeting all requests for help, information and literature.

Pietkiewicz said the donations received thus far and pledged will provide the tools to actively combat the distribution of pornography among children, support legislation and to urge citizens to demand that the laws be upheld.

He said that speakers will be available for any interested adult group. Arrangement can be made by writing to the committee at P.O. box 764, Glasco.

The next meeting of the group will be held June 17 at 7:30 p. m. in First Congregational Church, Main Street, Saugerties. All interested adult citizens are welcome to attend.

Discard the Unused

When you weed out your wardrobe, be ruthless. Don't keep anything you haven't worn for a year or two. Chances are you won't ever wear it again and you can use the closet space for new acquisitions.

Finely chopped toasted filberts or almonds make a splendid addition to a graham-cracker crust.

Rider Stabbed At Horse Show

DEVON, Pa. (AP)—A rider at the Devon Horse Show was stabbed Wednesday as thousands watched the quarrel just outside the main show ring.

Police said Wendell Jones Jr., 33, Lancaster, was taken to Bryn Mawr Hospital with stab wounds in the stomach.

Easttown Township police arrested Forrest Gibson, 46,

Lancaster and charged him with aggravated assault and battery. He was held in $500 bail for a further hearing by Justice of the Peace Daniel L. Redmond.

Witnesses said Jones was riding in a saddle-horse class when Gibson and another man started yelling at him from ringside. When the event ended, witnesses said, Jones rode out of the ring and jumped from his horse and was stabbed in an ensuing quarrel. Police said Gibson was a groom with the Greystone Manor Stables, Lancaster, and that Jones at one time rode for Greystone.

Officials said there was no immediate indication of what the quarrel was about.

Manorska Dance Recital June 13 At Town Hall

An afternoon of fairy tales make believe and enchantment lies ahead not only for the 50 children about to perform at the Woodstock Town Hall on Sunday, June 13, but also for the audience that will come and watch them.

The Manorska Dance Theatre—a Program of Fairy Tales Old and New—as its title implies, is not a recital in the ordinary sense of the word. Rather, it has been Madam Manorska's constant endeavor to educate her "dancing children" towards a minimum of routine and a maximum of self-expression.

In the months of instruction now behind them, the children, in addition to their technical training in modern ballet and acrobatics, have been offered a variety of themes, moods and stories through which their creative potential has been awakened, guided and developed. Out of these stirring and often magical experiences between children and teachers have now grown these five ballets about to be shown to the public for the first time.

First Appearance

For most of the children, June 13 will mark a first stage-appearance, and Madam Manorska.

Manorska is looking forward to the opportunity of sharing with the public an excitement which, for so many months of ardent studio-work, has been almost exclusively her own: the joy and revelation of the enchanted world of childhood—groping toward a first creative expression.

The numbers on the program range from a lyrical ballet about the seasons to a dramatic presentation of the Andersen story of the Little Mermaid; there will be a fairy tale about the creation of the moon, sun and stars, and a circus with special emphasis on the acrobatic talents of some four and five-year olds as well as an exotic snake dance. A "Shot to the Moon" is tinged with the modernistic accents of our times and not without a slightly satirical ending.

The music for the afternoon, chosen, as always with an effort towards installing in the children a love—not only of the dance, but also of the classical repertoire—will feature selections from Chopin, Tchaikovsky, Prokofiev and Adams.

King Lear Next For PAW Reading

After a successful reading and discussion of "King Lear" which took place on May 11 and May 23, the playreading group of the Performing Arts of Woodstock has scheduled a change of pace for the next meeting.

"After the Fall" by Arthur Miller will be read and discussed on Tuesday, June 8, at the Artists Association on Tinker Street in Woodstock. The program begins at 8 p. m.

The playreading group meets every second and fourth Tuesday throughout the year in Woodstock and all are welcome.

Workshop Starts On Local Drive For Benedictine

The workshop is under way for the Benedictine Hospital building fund rummage sale to be held July 3 from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. at 114 Tinker Street in Woodstock.

The sale and proceeds will go toward the dedication of one room in the hospital. Each person living in Woodstock has been asked to donate one dollar. Donations may be sent to Mrs. Adele Longendyke or Mrs. John Egan in Woodstock.

Art for the sale is being donated by four prominent Woodstock painters—John Pike, Brock Brokenshaw, Marie Arndt and Kay Burgevin. Music will be furnished by Phil Spinelli's Saints. Luncheon will be served. The donated art will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Special Table
Tables of items donated by the merchants of Kingston, Woodstock and Saugerties will be for sale. There will be antiques, a superb collection of China and glassware, books of every description, clothing for youngsters and adults and a specialty table with many attractive articles donated by persons all over the county.

Mrs. Egan is general chairman of the event, with Mrs. Longendyke and Mrs. Hendrick Wolter, co-chairmen.

Donations of merchandise and articles may be left at 114 Tinker Street any day.

Hedy Granted Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Hedy Lamarr, 50, has been granted a divorce from her sixth husband, Lewis W. Boies Jr., a 44-year-old attorney she married March 4, 1963. He did not contest the action.

Superior Court Judge Roger Alton Pfaff approved a property settlement Wednesday under which Boies is to pay Miss Lamarr half his gross income for two years, or a minimum of $1,250 monthly for the period.

Miss Lamarr testified that her marriage to Boies caused her to lose $500,000 and 20 pounds in weight. She said Boies had once threatened her with a baseball bat and, on another occasion, threw a table at her.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Could the 1929 crash happen again? Federal Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin sees today's boom psychology as having "disquieting similarities" with that of the 1920s.

But the Johnson administration holds that there's small likelihood of a repeat performance — if the Federal Reserve, business and labor all will cooperate with government in keeping the economy on a one-way street to prosperity.

Called New Economics
This doctrine is called the new economics. It contends that the business cycle can be licked, or at least tamed, and that 1929 need never happen again.

The Martin rattling of old memories sent shivers through U.S. stock markets Tuesday and the London stock market Wednesday.

Stock traders were alarmed that the smoldering dispute between administration economists and the money managers was coming out into the open.

They also were aware that it was just three years ago that the stock market had its worst crash since 1929. It revived and prices early this May were at record highs. The very height of these prices makes some observers dizzy. Businessmen are more inclined to concentrate on the evidence of continuing strength of the four-year-old economic upswing. They stress the brakes on booms and the cushions for downturns that have been developed since the 1929 crash.

Bankers study the clash in economic and monetary thinking in Washington to glean clues as to the future course of interest rates and the recently noted trend toward tighter money and credit. The trends — and the clash, if it becomes sharper — can affect both the course of the domestic economy and the troubled international monetary situation.

There are a number of things that make 1965 look like 1929. But even Martin concedes there are many differences, too.

The similarities: In both 1929 and 1965 government and business leaders were convinced that prosperity would last forever and that the business cycle was old hat. This belief was strengthened in both instances by a long period of economic growth. In both years private debt was growing rapidly. In both years the money supply was expanding.

Several Differences
But 1965 is different from 1929 in many ways: Excesses of the stock market, of banking and credit are under close supervision now, while in 1929 the sky was the limit. Wages have kept pace with corporate profits. And there is now a vastly expanded middle class with higher incomes and impressive liquid assets — as well as debts. Wholesale prices are fairly stable now, while in 1929 they were declining.

Business expansion of capacity now is being tailored much closer to consumer demands.

Social Security, unemployment benefits, dozens of government projects insure against the disastrous drop in private income that the 1929 crash triggered. And, as the 1962 stock market crash showed, generally prosperity isn't as closely tied to the market as it was in 1929. The stock market still has great psychological hold on the public. But the public now takes the ups and downs of the market without panicking.

About 148 Missile Silos Going on Sale This Month

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Want to buy a concrete-lined, 160-foot-deep hole in the ground, complete with air-conditioned living quarters and elevator?

Well, this month the General Services Administration expects to offer for sale perhaps as many as 148 missile silos, some of them equipped with large underground living quarters.

The silos cost the government about $1.5 billion, or from around $12 million to $25 million each.

From the standpoint of cost and number of similar installations involved, the disposal effort will be the largest yet for GSA, which is the government's housekeeping agency.

The GSA has an inventory of surplus government real and personal property for sale that numbers about 350 items ranging from a cast-iron water pipe, old post offices and abandoned lighthouses to a nuclear laboratory, including a nuclear reactor, and a complete high-energy fuel plant. The acquisition cost was about $750 million.

"What the government paid and what we will get for the silos will bear no relationship," said Howard Greenberg, commissioner of the GSA's utilization and disposal service.

"This was an investment in national security—national safety." But Greenberg and Walter C. Moreland, GSA assistant commissioner for real property, made it clear in a joint interview that every effort will be made to get the greatest possible return.

Because of the nature of the disposal problem, GSA published an unusual advertisement in March to alert possible civilian purchasers that the silos are going to be for sale.

And even earlier, when the Defense Department determined that the silos rapidly were being rendered obsolete because of advances in the missile field, both the Defense Department and GSA began canvassing to see if there was any other government use for the silos.

The Defense Department has notified the armed services committees of Congress of its intention to declare up to 148 of its 149 shots as excess to its needs, although it intends to remove certain equipment from them, the GSA officials said.

The silos are located all over the country, from Spokane, Wash., to Abilene, Tex., and from Plattsburgh, N.Y., to Marysville, Calif.

Moreland said there have been many evidences of interest in obtaining the silos and said every effort will be made to sell them as packages, including their surrounding equipment.

One inquiry came from a community contemplating a silo and the surrounding acreage in which it is located for an installation for housing juvenile delinquents, with the silo's power plant providing electricity for the institution.

Some state and local Civil Defense agencies are exploring the possibility of use of the silos for fallout shelters and for storage of emergency supplies.

Business Becomes Science

ATTEND REGIONAL FILTRATION ENGINEERS MEETING—Filtration procedures key-noted the two-day WGB Oil Clarifiers, Inc., meeting held at Hotel Kirkland last week when Hollis M. Burhans, president, assigned the new title of filtration engineers to the regional representatives east of the Mississippi. Left to right are, seated, Wendell Gray, chief engineer; Hollis M. Burhans, president; William Affleck, filtration engineer New England Division; standing, Stephen Johnson, New York Division; Peter Cunningham, Great Lakes Division; Oliver Wiggs, Middle Atlantic Division, filtration engineers.

Wendell Gray, chief engineer of WGB directed a comprehensive course of study encompassing air, fuel and oil filtration to WGB representatives during the course of the meetings for the past two years. This educational program has been based on years of laboratory research and compiling statistics of oil analysis under every conceivable condition which has established filtration as a science in the selection and use of filtering devices.

Hollis M. Burhans, president, explained how oil filtration has reached a point where it has become a science and not an industry where "could fit parts" are produced. He further explained how greater demands are being made on filtration today because of advance in design, horsepower and compression ratios of modern engines. The filter manufacturer must keep up with these demands or "fall by the wayside," he said.

Burhans said WGB is, therefore, introducing another first in filtration by promoting an oil analysis program through modern technology and specially trained representatives along with the use of WGB cartridges manufactured in Kingston. This program will enable the operators in the trucking and allied industries to judge and control their operation with a finer degree of accuracy than before possible, he claimed.

Burhans went further to explain that analyzing oil is not new, but that the combining of oil analysis directly with the sale of the filter element is new and to his knowledge, it is not available on the same scale as this program from any other filter manufacturer.

The filter industry has developed in the past few years into a so-called "rat race" of prices and claims, he said. The operator is at a loss as to how he can tell what he should buy or how long he can use a filter, Burhans said.

"We know through this program of filtration—educated representatives that we can provide the operators with the filtration that will show them the quality and performance that is built into the WGB products," Burhans concluded.

Trouble Brewing for Zaretzki, Travia

Own Party, Court Deal Hard Blows to Leaders

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Two severe blows were dealt this week to hopes of Senate Majority Leader Joseph Zaretzki and Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia to continue in their powerful posts beyond this year.

Their chief bulwark and source of their strength, Mayor Robert F. Wagner, said he might abandon his plans to run for a new term.

Need Combination

And the Democrats lost the last chance of forestalling a special legislative election this November under a Republican re-districting plan tailored to help the GOP regain control of the Legislature.

To survive as majority leaders, Zaretzki and Travia need at least a combination of a Democratic Legislature victory in November and Wagner back in New York City Hall next January.

If the Republicans retake control of the Legislature, Zaretzki and Travia will even have difficulty being re-elected to their old jobs as minority leaders.

Wagner ordered legislators in his political camp to stand by Zaretzki and Travia throughout a seven-week Democratic fight over the legislative leadership this year.

Republicans finally intervened on the side of the Wagner selections. It was asserted at the time that Wagner had agreed to support Gov. Rockefeller's sales-tax plan in exchange for GOP support of Zaretzki and Travia.

The Republican governor and the Democratic mayor denied having made any deal. But many observers continued to believe there had been at least an informal agreement that leaders elected with Republican votes would not oppose Rockefeller's fiscal policies.

Zaretzki and Travia won their leaders' jobs because the Wagner-Republican combination was strong enough to defeat the powerful anti-Wagner Democratic forces centered in the Bronx and Brooklyn.

At no time throughout the leadership fight did Zaretzki and Travia command a majority of the Democratic lawmakers. The bitter, intra-party split has remained.

New Team May Be Aim

If Wagner steps out, and his successor as the Democratic nominee wins election, the new mayor almost surely will want a new team at Albany.

The legislative leaders' jobs might well become bargaining points in the new candidate's efforts to unite the party in New York City.

Political observers would not be surprised if the Bronx and Brooklyn leaders demanded the ouster of Zaretzki and Travia from any leadership—majority or minority—as the price of their full support for a Democratic mayoral candidate.

Thus, Zaretzki and Travia may find that their first, trouble-plagued year in the command posts to which they aspired for so long has been their last.

McDivitt's Parents

Attend Early Mass

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — The parents of space pilot James A. McDivitt planned to attend early Mass today to pray for their son's safe journey through four days and thousands of miles of space travel.

Then Mr. and Mrs. James A. McDivitt Sr., prepared with three television sets, planned to stay anchored by the sets to watch their son lift off for his 62-orbit mission with Edward H. White II.

The senior McDivitt, 62, a balding, bespectacled electrical engineer with a twinkle in his eye, and Mrs. McDivitt, a smiling gray-haired woman with a soft voice, said they heard from their son Tuesday night in what they expected would be his last phone call before the lift-off.

"I will be wearing my yellow rubbers just for you," the astronaut told his mother. (The "rubbers" actually are yellow boots which are part of the astronaut's new space suits.) The astronaut sounded relaxed and ready, his parents said.

After the mission, the Whites hope to meet their son in the Colorado Rockies for some trout fishing and horseback riding.

Whites Take Calm

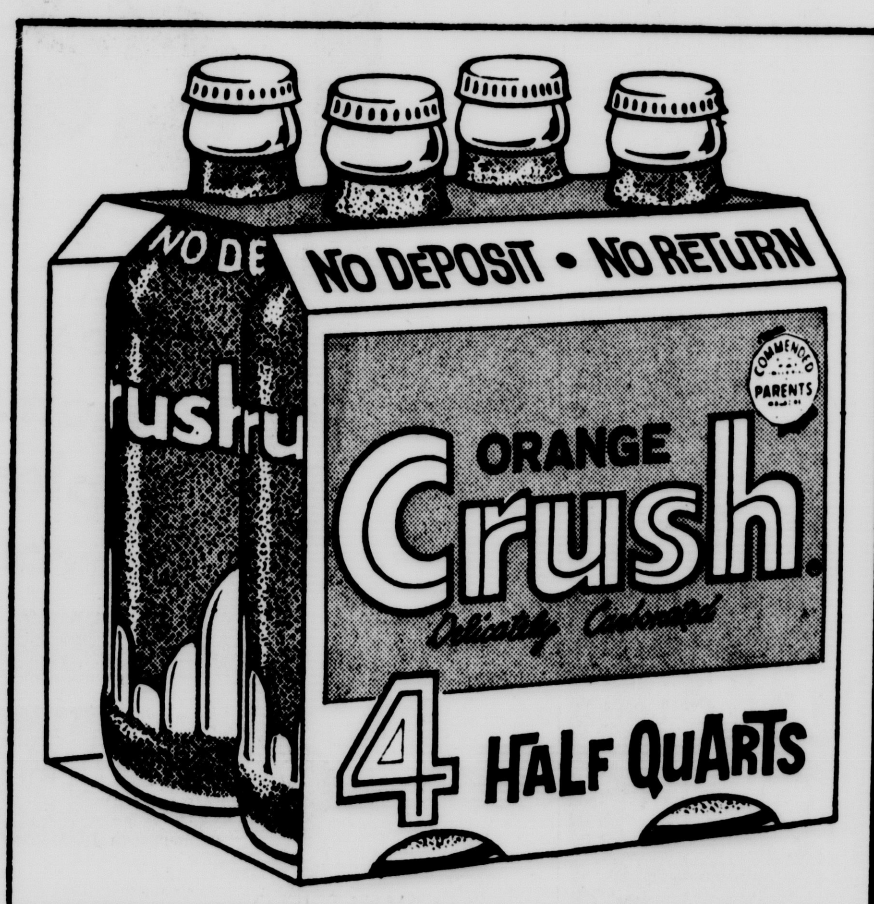

View of Space Trip

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The parents of Edward H. White II take a calm, good humored view of their astronaut son's venture into space.

"We don't worry in our family," retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Edward H. White told newsmen. "We have a great faith that things will turn out all right."

Three television sets will enable White and wife, Mary, to follow the flight. The receivers are set up in the Whites' home at Snell Isle here.

GM's New President Never Went to College

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Business News Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Enrollment in correspondence school classes may jump when word gets around that General Motors' new president James M. Roche got a lot of his education via the mails.

Roche, 58, elected Tuesday as president of the world's largest manufacturing concern, never attended college. As a youth he supplemented his high school education with mail courses in business and commerce from a Chicago correspondence school.

His selection came as no surprise. In recent weeks of speculation about who would succeed retiring GM President John F. Gordon, Roche's name almost always was the first one mentioned.

Although two of his 38 years in the automotive business were spent as Cadillac Division's then one-man public relations department, Roche never sought personal publicity.

His modest, 15-page official GM biography told of his birth in Elgin, Ill., and his attendance at elementary and high schools there. He took his first job with an Aurora, Ill., utility company, meanwhile undertaking correspondence school courses.

In 1927, at the age of 21, he succumbed to the lure of the auto business and joined a Chicago Cadillac branch as a sales assistant. A year later, he was assistant manager of the branch.

His rise in Cadillac was climaxed in 1937 when he was named as its general manager and a vice president of General

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1898, the ancient coal boat Merrimack steamed into the harbor of Santiago, Cuba — inside the harbor was a Spanish Fleet, outside, U.S. warships. A naval battle, Richmond Hobson, and seven volunteers tried to sink the collier and bottle up the Spanish. Hobson lost control under heavy fire from shore batteries and the collier sank in deep water. The men took to a life raft but were captured by the Spanish.

YMCA Lines Up Summer Events For Boys, Girls

The summer boys and girls program at the YMCA is now being planned by Charles Sims, physical director for the vacation days of July and August.

All girls of elementary school age are always given Wednesday and Friday during vacation for special use of the swimming pool to learn swimming. Wednesday, June 30 at 9:15 a. m. all girls from 6 to 13 years of age will meet at the YMCA and they will be placed in a swimming class according to their age and size. The girls' classes will be held every Wednesday and Friday with four classes each morning starting at 9 a. m. Each class will be for a 60-minute period with the fourth instruction class at 1 p. m. Louis H. Schafer, secretary, will assist Sims in forming the first day's classes. The swimming instructor also will have high school girls assist him daily in the pool and shower rooms. These four classes will give approximately 100 to 125 girls an opportunity to learn to swim and to learn safety techniques in the water.

The 1:30 to 3 p. m. swimming for girls will be more recreational, although the first part of class will be given over to the teaching of advanced swimming strokes and the teaching of skills for water safety and diving.

The boys between the ages of seven and 13 years will have a membership program every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Besides the teaching of swimming and advanced swimming strokes the boys will be taught track and field events in preparation for a track meet to be held in July or August. All contestants will be placed in age groups or in weight set-ups for competition. Physical director Sims is planning on many bus trips as follows: The Yankee Stadium, Shea Stadium, Baird Park, Frontier Town and others. On cold or rainy days the boys will assemble in the youth department for tournament games in billiards, ping pong and many other table games. The tournaments will be followed by games in the gymnasium and a swim in the pool.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prices of meat, potatoes and fresh vegetables appear likely to remain high for at least several more weeks. Some bargains, however, may be tucked away among food market week-end specials.

One way to beat the high cost of beef and pork is to switch to veal or lamb. Although their prices may not be any lower than normal they probably haven't increased as much as other meats.

Attractive prices may turn up for beef and pork cuts in some stores but wholesale prices are way up and food markets have little room for maneuver. Behind the high prices for beef and pork are sharply higher wholesale prices. Live hogs are selling at a 7-year high and top-quality cattle at a 2½-year high at Chicago.

As regional vegetable and fruit farms begin seasonal harvesting, vegetable prices are expected to drop here and there in the next few weeks. Potatoes, still are very high at most points but slightly lower in the Midwest.

Head lettuce and tomatoes are still expensive nearly everywhere.

It's a good idea to use a moderate (375 degrees) temperature instead of a slow (325 degrees) temperature when roasting a broiler-fryer.

Expert Gives Advice

Would Hold Off Tax Cuts Until Economic Ills Here

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1964 tax cut worked stimulative wonders. But should reducing taxes become a habit, like taking pep pills?

The issue has been raised, in connection with the pending excise-tax reductions of $4.8 billion, by an eminent critic — Howard C. Petersen, banker, lawyer, and former high official of the Defense, State and Treasury departments.

Petersen questioned only the timing, not the desirability, of excise-tax repeals. "Tax cuts taken continually can be debilitating," he observed, and went on to urge: "Our powerful policy medicine of discretionary tax cuts can—and should—be held in reserve for a future time when economic ills will require them."

Petersen's demurrers won't halt the excise reductions; the cuts are sure to come. His testimony was given, in fact, to a Senate committee which has no voice in tax legislation, the subcommittee on national security and international operations headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

The Jackson committee is concerned with economic policy as it affects national security.

Tax actions of recent years — the investment stimulants of 1962 and the massive income tax cut of 1964 — were beneficial, said Petersen. They helped bring the economy to a state of prosperity where "we can gradually swing from budget deficit to budget surplus, and thereby stabilize our economy around a sustainable growth rate."

The former assistant secretary of the Army and top negotiator with the European Common Market, now president of the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Co., went on: "We must have the intestinal fortitude not to succumb to the tax-cutting habit. Tax reduction should be held in reserve, as a remedy, no injected continuously as a stimulant."

Instead, the treatment which President Johnson calls "expansionary fiscal policy" proposes further tax-cut dosage for an economy enjoying generally robust health. The result, warned Petersen, may be to prolong a growth rate which cannot be sustained in the long run. "These policies — appropriate in their time — can generate instability if continued beyond their time," he argued.

Excise cuts are needed to offset the expected drag, the administration contends. And some groups already are calling for a second major income tax cut, to follow the excise reductions. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce made such an appeal to Congress last week.

But there are signs of caution even within the President's Council of Economic Advisers. A wave of price boosts is "disturbing," Chairman Gardner Ackley said recently.

Collins Followed Like 'Battlefield Messiah'

Half of Marine Company Shows Devotion To Commander, Gives Up Trip to States

EDITORS NOTE: Following is the first of two columns on U.S. Marine company commander.

By HAL BOYLE
A COMMAND POST IN SOUTH VIET NAM (AP) — Recently half the members of Company D, 3rd Reconnaissance Battalion of the U.S. Marine 3rd Division were eligible to return to America. But to a man they volunteered for six months more of battle duty here.

"Hell, we can't go home and leave the old man to clean up this mess all by himself," said one young Marine.

Bravery Is Habit
The old man is Capt. Pat Collins, 32, of Grosse Ile, Mich., one of the boldest company commanders on the front, a man with whom bravery is a habit.

The 4 officers, 80 troops and 3 Navy corpsmen of his company followed him as if he were a battlefield messiah. And he returns their devotion in full measure.

"They're exceptionally aggressive," he said. "With men like these, leading them isn't the problem. It's keeping up with them."

Pat is stocky and has a deeply tanned face of homely eloquence with Irish blue eyes. In manner he is both brusque and oddly gentle.

He served as a corporal in the Korean campaign and put in 26 months at Guantanamo Bay in Cuba before coming to the Far East seven months ago.

In Cuba, he won the Navy Marine Corps Medal, the highest peacetime decoration, and since coming here he was the first Marine in the Da Nang area to win a Bronze Star for bravery.

Squirms About Medals
The captain squirms in embarrassment when asked about his medals.

"In that Cuba thing there were some people caught in a minefield that had to be gotten out," he said. "and as for that Bronze Star, I was just trying to get some of our wounded evacuated."

What Pat actually did that gained him a Bronze Star was to stand up time and time again under steady heavy enemy fire and personally direct helicopters to a landing zone where they could pick up some of his wounded men.

In their first 42 days here, Pat and his men engaged in 32 squad to company size patrols and made 19 contacts with the enemy.

Their company has been locked in some of the fiercest fire fights in the Marine sector. "We have covered every bloody inch of this ground, mostly by foot," said the captain.

Always Rough Going
"The heat and heavy undergrowth make it rough. We carry rifles, 200 rounds of ammo, four grenades and four canteens. We also try to bring along some canned fruit to provide extra fluid."

"We may go only five miles and come out by helicopter. But on a two-day patrol we have covered 30 miles."

"Sometimes we have to cut our way or crawl on hands and knees."

"The other day we walked for 3½ hours in water up to our armpits. We liked that. It gave us a chance to cool off."

The recon company has killed

5 Viet Cong, wounded 16 and probably killed 5 more. It has suffered 3 dead and 16 wounded.

"Two of our people have been wounded twice and one is still with us," said Collins. He added, as if in apology, "I haven't been hit myself once."

Next, Why Capt. Collins loves his job.

CREATIVE AGING

Every man in business must face, at some time in his future, the vital problem of how he can live contentedly after his active business years are ended. For the guidance of those who have a fearful vision of life after 65, here are ten hints for happiness after the productive years:

1. A Balanced Diet. The older the individual, the more lean proteins such as meat, fish and low fat are required. Adequate amounts of vitamins and fluid are essential. There should be moderate restriction of the total calories, especially for those overweight. Fatness is dangerous.

2. Eliminate Wastes Promptly and Naturally—Body cleanliness requires adequate elimination through the bowels, kidneys, skin and lungs. Deep breathing at periodic intervals eliminates waste gases.

3. Rest Well and Completely. Adequate rest of the body and mind every 24 hours. Sleep is a blessed thing! A tired mind and body will find calm relaxation and sleep; no sedative should be taken indefinitely without advice from one's physician.

4. Recreation—Optimum living requires interesting and specific recreational pursuits. Balance your work and your play.

5. A Sense of Humor—Encourage it... and control your emotions; avoid consuming fires of anger, hatred and jealousy, the virulent poisons which are frequently the forerunners of high blood pressure and stroke. Humor is the balance wheel of modern living, the best antidote for tension.

6. Love Life... Love people... Love Nature—Companionship is of utmost importance as one advances along the path of life.

7. Participate in Community Affairs—Senior citizens should exercise leadership. A strong community will utilize the experience of all its older citizens, and they should refuse to become segregated in developments reserved for older people.

8. Keep learning... To continue to enjoy the added years that science is making possible, determine to grow in knowledge, understanding and experience every day. The zest of living is at the growing edge.

9. Keep an Abiding Faith—In yourself, your family, your nation, your God. As physical powers slowly wane, the sustaining support of faith, understanding and love for the eternal verities supplies a wide margin of reserve against all adversity... The mature, aging individual can sparkle with an incandescent charm far beyond the reach of the younger generation.

10. Consult Your Physician

Marshall Named To IBM Posts

ARMONK — Burke Marshall has been elected to the newly-created post of vice president and general counsel of International Business Machines Corporation, it was announced today.

Marshall was formerly assistant attorney general in charge of the Civil Rights Division of the United States Justice Department. He was appointed to be post in 1961 by President John F. Kennedy and held it until Jan. 15 of this year, when he resigned to return to private practice.

Before joining the Justice Department, Marshall was a member of the Washington, D. C. law firm of Covington & Burling.

A native of New Jersey, Marshall attended Phillips Exeter Academy and Yale University. He received his A.B. in 1943 and enlisted in the Army in the same year.

During his military service, Marshall was trained as a linguist in the Japanese language. Separated from the Army in 1946, he went to Tokyo as a message analyst for the War Department. Upon returning to the United States, he entered Yale Law School, was awarded a J.B. in 1951, and joined Covington & Burling the following year.

Marshall will be located at IBM's Corporate Headquarters in Armonk. He is married to the former Violet Person, of Minneapolis, whom he met when both were assigned as Japanese linguists for Army Intelligence. They are the parents of three daughters, ranging in age from six to 13, and will reside in Bedford.

Showdown Looms In Harrisburg on School Bus Bill

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The controversial school bus bill was ready for a showdown vote in the Pennsylvania Senate today with passage apparently an accepted fact.

The bill was placed in final position Wednesday for the roll call vote, but not before proponents succeeded in reverting the legislation back to the form in which it passed the House.

This means that the measure, which would require school districts furnishing bus transportation for their students to provide the same service for private and parochial pupils would go directly to Republican Gov. William Scranton if passed in its present form.

Scranton already has said he would sign the measure if it reached his desk.

The Senate met alone today. The House adjourned after spending its two most productive days of the session thus far acting on 100 bills and clearing the Democratic mass transit and unemployment compensation programs for consideration.

Leaking Phosphorous Ties Up Thruway

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Leaking liquid phosphorous on two drum-laden tractor-trailer trucks gave firemen several anxious hours late Wednesday night and tied up traffic on the New York Thruway.

Firemen and an Army demolition team worked for more than three hours to seal leaks on one truck carrying 48 55-gallon drums of the highly explosive chemical.

Just when they announced that they had that situation under control, a second truck hauling the shipment from St. Louis to Boston reported a leaking drum.

Thruway police said that leak was minor and was quickly sealed.

Parents desiring weekend and evening information as well as Day Camp information may phone the YMCA. Special camp booklets will be mailed on request.

As soon as those hard-cooked eggs have finished cooking, cover them with cold water and the chances are there will be no dark yolks.

Girl Scout News

Facilities at Camp Wendy Combine Fun, Adventure, Learning

Girl Scouting in the out-of-doors is fun, learning and adventure—all of which may be experienced by scouts this summer at Camp Wendy, the established camp of Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts, two miles from Walkill. Scattered over 64 acres of open and wooded lands are tents and Adirondack shelters overlooking Lake Louise, the council's private lake.

Four different troop size units are set up to accommodate the more than 100 girls who attend each camp period. Placement of the girls is determined by the camp director, Mrs. William Croft of Matawan, N. J. Girl-planned activities with emphasis on camp craft is encouraged. In addition a wider opportunities program is offered for older girls as well as an aquanauts and Brownies program.

Camp Wendy is managed according to the standards of the National Girl Scout Camp Division and American Camping Association. A trained nurse is a member of the staff and a doctor is on call. Other staff members, thus far, are Miss Joan Van Keuran of Kingston, camp program director; Miss Elizabeth Crawford of Germantown, waterfront director and Miss Herri Houze of New Paltz, assistant waterfront director. All staff members have had practical field experience and years of training in their chosen field.

Troop camping is now being conducted and established camping begins July 4. There are some openings still available according to Mrs. Kenneth Martin, executive director.

After receiving their Brownie Wings the Scouts then crossed the bridge into Junior Scouting and held a candlelight investiture service. Refreshments were served. Mrs. J. D. Janotti is leader of Troop 17, assisted by Mrs. T. Turco.

Recently the girls had a cook-out at the IBM Recreation Center. They played games and sang songs. Assisting with transportation and fire safety were Mr. Janotti and son, John and Mrs. Thomas Turck.

The second part of the evening consisted of ceremonies portraying the crossing over the bridge of scouting from Brownie to Junior then Cadette and on into Senior. Linda Field who has completed her Cadette years was "capped" with her Senior hat by her leader, Mrs. Clarence Herdman, and wished much success as a Senior Scout. Diane E. Brady, John W. Beisel Take Marriage Vows in St. Joseph's

On May 29, 1965 in St. Joseph's Church, Kingston, marriage vows were exchanged by Diane Elizabeth Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Brady, 100 O'Neil Street, this city, and John William Beisel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Beisel of Connelly, N. Y.

Officiating clergyman was the Rev. Peter Cody of St. Peter's Church, Poughkeepsie, a friend of the family. Mrs. Rafferty was organist and Donald Sweeney was soloist.

White gladioli decorated the church for the occasion. The bride carried a bouquet of carnations at the altar of the Blessed Mother.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of hand clipped chantilly lace over silk taffeta with accents of seed pearls and beaded beads. The full skirt was chapel length. A butterfly veil of English silk illusion was held by a double crown of lace. She carried white roses with ivy centered with a corsage of white roses.

The bride's sister Joanne was maid of honor. She was gowned in coral silk organza along A-lines and her headpiece was a braided horsehair cabbage rose accented with pearls and crystals. It held a bouffant veil. Miss Brady carried pink and white carnations.

The Misses Nancy Beisel of Connelly, sister of the bridegroom, Elizabeth Komosa of Kingston, the bride's aunt, and Carol Fleming of Rosendale, were the bridesmaids. They were gowned identically to that worn by the honor attendant and they carried white carnations.

The bride's sister, Kathy Anne, served as flower girl in a floor length white gown of colonial style. She carried a miniature cascade of pink and white carnations. She wore white carnations in her hair.

Sgt. Robert D. Beisel of Fort Monmouth, N. J., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Francis Hart of Woodstock, William R. Brady of Kingston, brother of the bride, and Thomas Reilly of Connelly, the bridegroom's brother-in-law.

A reception was given at the Tropical Inn, Port Ewen for 150 guests. Afterwards the couple left for Washington D. C.

Mrs. Beisel attended Kingston High School and is employed by Shop-Rite in Kingston. Her husband attended Kingston High School and is employed as assistant manager of Shop-Rite in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Local Nursery School Looks Into Forming Education Chapter

The recent meeting held at the Fair Street Nursery School to explore the possibility of organizing a chapter of the National Association for the Education of Young Children was attended by individuals and professional people from Newburgh, Poughkeepsie, Red Hook, Saugerties, Middletown, New Paltz and Kingston. Mrs. Benjamin Emerick presided, and Mrs. Boyd Campbell, president of the New York State Association, pointed out the professional advantages of belonging to such a chapter, and distributed literature from the National organization.

Interest in forming a Mid-Hudson Chapter to meet twice a year with local study groups to meet more frequently led to a resolution to call an organizational meeting in the fall to launch a Mid-Hudson Chapter of the Association for the Education of Young Children.

Dr. Josephine Palmer, professor of Education at New Paltz, and a coordinator of Operation Head Start, spoke of the "round the clock" seven days a week activity in Washington and other centers to launch the summer program for disadvantaged five and six year olds, recommended in the president's new legislation on education. This program will continue on a year-round basis and will include three and four year olds by the fall term. Concern for these young children, Dr. Palmer stated, comes from a study of school "drop-outs", showing a vicious circle of school failures and families on relief into the third generation. Operation Head Start, and its follow-up program for three and four year olds, which will be called Child Development, is a first step in helping this generation become more successful in school.

Dorothy Levens, Director of the Vassar College Nursery School, and professor of the Child Study Department at Vassar, described a project undertaken by her Nursery School last winter in which 14 children from underprivileged families in Poughkeepsie were given the advantages of a nursery school. The development of intellectual curiosity in these children over the few short months has influenced whole families in homes where books, even clocks were unknown before. Vassar plans to continue the project with a close follow-up on these children as they go out into the world.

Dr. Palmer and Miss Levens both stressed, in speaking of Operation Head Start, the need for small groups, making possible close human contact with these young children and with their parents. Public money spent in this way will save tax dollars in the end by salvaging so many who will otherwise surely be a drain on the community for the rest of their lives.

FIRST INVITATION NOT YET RETURNED

Q: I invited our family doctor and his wife to dinner several weeks ago. We enjoyed their company very much and they seemed to enjoy ours. However, they have not as yet returned our invitation. My husband would like me to invite them soon again. I am perfectly willing to do so but as they have made no attempt to return our hospitality, it may be that they don't want to encourage our friendship and for this reason I hesitate to do anything further. Would a second invitation from us be proper, or may they think we are trying to force ourselves on them?

A: Unless the doctor and his wife do very little entertaining, or have given you some indication that they would like to see you again, it would be best to wait until they have returned your hospitality before inviting them again.

Fellow Employees Sent Wreath

Q: My brother died recently and the men and women with whom I work took up a collection and sent a beautiful wreath of flowers to the funeral. I would like to know who should write the note of thanks for these flowers — my brother's widow, or I?

A: As the flowers were obviously sent because of you, you should write the note of thanks.

Greeting Cards Sent By Engaged Couple

Q: Will you please tell me if it is proper for an engaged couple to send greeting cards, such as birthday or anniversary cards, to mutual friends, signed with both their names, or is this not done until after they are married?

A: Signing both their names to informal greetings cards sent to mutual friends would be quite all right.

PAN-FRIED TROUT—Trout are the aristocrats of the freshwater fish family. Not only are they beautiful, but the succulent buttery meat of trout is perfection itself. Plan on one trout for each person to be served. Wash and dry trout. Rub lemon juice into the cavity of the trout. Season cavity with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Dip fish into a mixture of beaten egg and water or milk. Grate lemon rind and mix with finely crushed corn flakes. Roll fish in this mixture. Fry trout in a mixture of half vegetable oil and butter. Mixture should cover about half the trout and should be hot but not smoking. Do not overcook. When golden brown turn with a spatula only once. Cooking time depends on size of the fish. Garnish with parsley and serve with lemon quarters dipped in paprika.

Winningest Pitcher

Drysdale Notches 9th, 4 to 1 Over Cardinals

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale's dew point is higher than his winning percentage — but not much higher.

St. Louis humidity wilted the Los Angeles Dodgers' premier right-hander after six innings Wednesday night but didn't stop him from becoming the winningest pitcher in the majors as the National League leaders cuffed the Cardinals 4-1.

Reliever Ron Perranoski nailed down Drysdale's ninth victory in 12 decisions with a scoreless three-inning stint after the Dodgers starter tired in 79 per cent humidity at Busch Stadium. The triumph, which launched a 14-game road trip for the Dodgers, boosted their league lead to four games — the biggest margin they've had this season.

Cincinnati moved into second place, three percentage points ahead of San Francisco, by trimming Houston 5-2 in a game called after six innings because of rain. The rest of the schedule — New York at Chicago, San Francisco at Milwaukee and Philadelphia at Pittsburgh — was washed out.

Yields Five Hits

Drysdale allowed five of the nine St. Louis hits, picking up his third straight victory and 150th since he broke in with the then-Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956. His nine victories this season top the Cardinals' Bob Gibson and Cincinnati's Sammy Ellis, the winner Wednesday night against Houston, by one.

Perranoski, unscored upon in his last five appearances — spanning 9 1-3 innings, fanned the side in the seventh after yielding a leadoff double to Mike Shannon. A double play helped him out of a ninth-inning jam when the Cardinals bunched their last three hits but failed to score.

Tommy Harper's three-run double and homers by Gordy Coleman and Johnny Edwards gave Ellis all the help he needed in the rain-shortened Astros-Reds game.

The Astros, playing without injured regulars Jim Wynn, Lee Maye and Eddie Kasko, clipped Ellis, 8-2, for two runs in the fourth. The first one scored on Pete Rose's throwing error, the other on Bob Lillis' single.

Junior Champs

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Phoenix, Ariz., rapped out 12 hits and clustered its runs to beat Gulf Coast, Fla., 9-6 Wednesday night and claim the 1965 National Junior College Baseball Championship.

HRGA Golf Day Seniors at WCC

The Hudson River Golf Association will stage its annual Seniors championship in conjunction with a Day-at-Golf Saturday at Wiltwyck Country Club.

The Seniors competition is in two classes: Class A (60 years and up); Class B, 50 to 59. Low gross player in the Seniors field receives the Paul Weiss Memorial Trophy.

Low gross and low net prizes will be awarded in the A, B and C classes of the regular tournament. The tournaments open at 9 o'clock.

Toronto-Atlanta Series Crucial

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The most crucial series of the early International League season opens tonight in Atlanta with league-leading Toronto meeting the Crackers in a three-game set.

Both teams have won 31 games this season, but Atlanta has lost three more games than the Maple Leafs. The Crackers must win all three games to regain first place.

In the only game played Wednesday night, Atlanta slipped 1 1/2 games behind with a 7-6 loss to Columbus. Jacksonville was rained out at Toledo in the only other game scheduled.

Columbus scored the winning run on a wild pitch by Atlanta's ace reliever Dave Eilers in the bottom of the ninth. Atlanta had taken the lead in the top of the inning when Adrian Garrett scored on a sacrifice bunt which relief pitcher Sad Sam Jones mishandled.

Singles by George Spriggs, Pancho Herrera and Purnal Goldy brought home the tying run for the Jets before Herrera scored the winning run on the wild pitch.

AT RHINEBECK RING: Connie Munson of the Triple A Bar Ranch of South Kent, Conn., will be one of the featured attractions at the second annual Cowboy Rodeo being sponsored by Wappingers Lodge of Masons Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Rhinebeck Fair Grounds. Only 15, she is a veteran horsewoman with numerous blue ribbons and championship trophies in addition to being an accomplished trick rider and barrel racer.

Herdegen Slates At-Large Qualifying at Woodstock

Qualifying round for at-large players in the 1965 Herdegen Memorial tournament will be held Saturday at 3 p. m. at the Woodstock Country Club.

All players with bonafide Ulster county residency and with handicaps of 10 or under are eligible to compete.

Six spots in the 36-player field are allotted to at-large players, but the Herdegen committee reserves the right to reduce the number if there are insufficient entries.

Entries should be directed to Charles J. Tiano, tournament director at the Kingston Daily Freeman no later than 2 p. m. Friday.

Carol Sorenson, Amateur Ace Has No Pro Designs

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Carol Sorenson, who's won practically every woman's amateur golf title since she began the sport competitively at the age of 9, says she has no desire to turn professional.

The 22-year-old Arizona State University senior has made considerable personal sacrifice to achieve amateur stardom, but she says, "I'd rather play to enjoy it than to feel it was something I had to do."

Miss Sorenson's athletic ability was discovered by her father, Ted, who had an eye for such things as physical education director at Janesville, Wis., High School.

Carol's success story started when she won the 12-and-under division of a tourney in Santa Ana, Calif., when she was 9. In her initial test against more seasoned competition, she won the Janesville Municipal Women's Tournament at 10.

Her most recent noteworthy victory was in last year's British Amateur.

The one major tourney which has eluded Carol is the USGA's Women's Amateur, and she'll make another try in August.

School Comes First
School cuts down on her tournament activity. "There are several tournaments in the spring that I would enter if I weren't in school," she says.

"One is the North-South at Pinehurst, N. C. That's considered a pretty good national tournament."

"One of the hardest and most frustrating things is to go to school, especially college, and attempt to keep up your athletic endeavors."

"If I play golf, it's a half hour to the course, a half hour back and four hours to play. That's five hours, and you can do a lot of studying in five hours."

Carol, who has been named the prettiest woman golfer in the nation, says she thinks it's possible for a woman to be athletic and feminine at the same time.

"It's truer today than ever," she said. "I don't think a girl needs to spend all of her time getting her hair set."

The pert, blue-eyed blonde takes her beauty honor lightly and quipped.

"The year that happened, they just had got down to the S's in the alphabet, that's all."

Lema to Defend In Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Golfers on the professional tour were scheduled to begin their quest today for an $18,000 first prize and a new car to help them spend it in the eighth annual $100,000 Buick Open Golf Tournament.

British Open champion Tony Lema, the defending titlist here, heads the field of 144 who set out to test the 7,280-yard Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club course, longest on the tour.

First prize of $18,000 is double the amount won by Lema last year when he posted a 277 to take one of the three titles he won in the month of June.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, both of whom have passed up this tourney in recent years, are competing. So is Bobby Nichols, who won the $200,000 Carling World Open last year.

Joining Lema are all the other Buick Open champions, Billy Casper, Art Wall, Mike Souchak, Jack Burke and Julius Rame.

Two Share Lead In Criers Golf

Mrs. Vincent Connelly and Mrs. Edward Minasian tied with net 31 1/2 to share first place in the Twaalfskill women's Criers tournament.

Mrs. Connelly grossed 50 and had 19 handicap. Mrs. Minasian posted low gross for the day (42) and had 11 handicap strokes.

Mrs. N. Levan Haver was all alone in third place with 45-13-32.

Bracketed at net 33s were: Mrs. Hugh R. Elwyn, 47-14; Mrs. William Kuehn, 49-16; Mrs. James Andretta, 44-11; and Mrs. Burton Davis, 48-15-33.

Frasier Winner In ENYGA Golf

Neil Frasier of Pine Brook carded a 5-over-par 76 to win the weekly Eastern New York Golf Association tournament at his home club Wednesday. The all-day rain cut down the field considerably.

Frasier had a 37-39 to beat out three players at 77: Iver Lees, Ballston Spa; Chuck Murphy, Pinehaven; Al Zambello, Pine Brook.

The B and C fields played at Antlers, Amsterdam, where Bob Edwards of Red Hook had low gross of 82 in Class B and Frank Plotnik also of Red Hook, low gross of 84 in Class C.

Next week's event will take place at Rutland, Vt.

The Genial Giant

Lead in His (Shoes) Big Boon for Frank Howard

By MURRAY CHASS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Howard doesn't have lead in his feet any more. There isn't any in his bat either.

A National League veteran turned American League rookie, Howard continued his steady batting climb Wednesday night as the Washington Senators swept their fifth doubleheader of the season, most in the majors, by mauling the Los Angeles Angels 13-0 and 7-1.

The genial giant collected six hits in 10 at-bats, including two homers, and knocked in five runs as the Senators slipped ahead of the New York Yankees into eighth place in the A.L.

His performance gave Howard the league lead in runs batted in with 39, a tie for the lead in home runs with 10 and a tie for the lead in hits with 57. He also raised his average 17 points to .302, putting him among the league's top 10 hitters.

Lead in Shoes

Headed for possibly the best season in his six-year career, the 6-foot-7, 250-pound outfielder can attribute his torrid pace partly to five pounds of lead he carried around with him during spring training.

Howard, the biggest name in a seven-player deal between the Senators and the Los Angeles Dodgers last winter, reported to the Washington camp nearly 20 pounds overweight.

To combat this problem, Howard wore a 2 1/2-pound weight in each shoe not only in practice but in exhibition games as well.

In other A.L. games, Minnesota defeated Boston 6-3 and Baltimore trimmed Kansas City 6-4. Rain washed out Detroit at New York and Chicago at Cleveland.

In Fit of Anger

The injury occurred, Mantle said, while he was trying to break a bat in half after striking out for the fourth time in a game against the Red Sox May 18.

"I controlled myself as long as I could," Mickey said somewhat apologetically. "After each strikeout, I hung up my helmet nice and calm instead of flinging it to the ground, and I tried hard not to kick anything."

"But after that fourth one, I just couldn't hold it in any longer. After shoving the bat into that bat rack, I tried to break it off with my right hand. That's when I strained the muscle in my neck."

The sore neck has been hampering his swing, he said, and has prevented him from getting anything behind his throws from the outfield.

Mantle didn't appear to be worried about the Yankees' dismal start in defense of their American League championship. The slugger still thinks the Yankees will win despite their 19-26 won-and-lost record which has them 9 1/2 games off the pace.

"We've still got plenty of time to win the pennant," he said.

Baltimore overcame a 2-0 Kansas City lead on Curt Blefary's two-run double and a two-run homer by Norm Siebern in the sixth inning. Dick Hall pitched the final four innings for the Orioles, limiting the Athletics to two hits, one of them Dick Green's ninth-inning homer.

Howard slammed two homers and a double for four RBI in the first game while Joe Cunningham drove in five runs with three hits, including a homer, all in support of Phil Ortega's five-hitter.

Howard's three singles in the nightcap increased his average against the Angels to .458 in six games. Ken McMullen slammed a two-run homer in the first inning and added two singles as Bennie Daniels and Ron Kline combined for a six-hitter.

Jim Perry turned in a brilliant relief stint for Minnesota, relieving starter Jim Grant with two on and one out in the second inning and allowing only one Boston baserunner, on an error, until Lenny Green singled with two out in the seventh. The Twins' Harmon Killebrew and Jimmie Hall each smashed a two-run homer.

3rd Over $20,000

$23,505 Payoff

In Twin Double

MONTICELLO — The third $20,000 plus twin double became a reality last night at Monticello Raceway in this thus far short season. One lucky ticket-holder in the crowd of 3,125 has a pastebored worth $23,505.90 as the result of tonight's 5-2-47 combination.

When Jim Grundy won the eighth race, final leg of the twin, with Jam Session, the juicy payoff materialized. Grundy, laying off the pace with the five-year-old he was cashing for, came from behind to win the race with a rush around the final bend to knock off favorites Francis R. and Bunker. Small twins would have been the result had either the second or third place finishers won.

Prior to Grundy's victory with Jam Session, Tony Sergi won the fifth with Teistar, Al Manzi took the sixth with Mighty Arnold H. and Larry Nichols scored in the seventh behind Tip Shilleagh. Three others in the eighth, Sara Blaze, Tag Wethy and Topaz Sue would have also returned the $23,505.90 payoff had they hit the finish wire first.

Favorite Wins
Total handle for the evening was $236,837.

ABC Freight Forwarding Stable's Perfect Freight lived up to his star billing in the featured third race and posted a three-quarter length 2:08.4 victory at Monticello Raceway. Driver Clint Hodgins sent the promising three-year-old to the front at the outset and he humbled his worthy opponents with a 30.3 closing quarter in notching the win.

The daily double combination of 6 and 4 paid $130.80 when Mason Dixon won the first with John Manzi Sr. driving and then Fingo's Boy took the second in front of the urging of Bob Kane.

Broken Foot Stops Oregon's Ken Moore
EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — University of Oregon distance runner Ken Moore, who has the fastest collegiate three-mile time in the nation this year, has a broken foot bone and will not be able to compete in the NCAA Championship track meet June 17-19 at Berkeley, Calif.

Oregon Coach Bill Bowerman said Wednesday that Moore suffered the injury May 23, the day after winning the Pacific Athletic Conference three-mile event in Pullman, Wash.

The injury will keep Moore out of action from one month to six weeks, Bowerman said. Oregon is the defending NCAA track and field champion.

At Vernon Downs, there were three divisions for the featured race, each one worth $1,500 to northern-trained two-year-olds.

73-Year-Old Trainer
In the first, Money Time paid $190 for a time of 2:15 3-5. The filly was trained by Charlie Shaver, whose 73rd birthday was celebrated with her victory. The Syracuse trainer has spent 57 years in harness racing.

The second division, for colts and geldings, was taken by Frisco Fagin who paced the course in 2:12 4-5 to return $4.30, while the third division was won by Dippy Dean who paid $10.30, going the distance in 2:13 4-5.

Tom Rolfe-Dapper Dan Duel Shaping Up in Preakness

NEW YORK (AP) — They're advertising Saturday's renewal of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes as a grudge race between two half-brothers — Preakness winner Tom Rolfe and runner-up Dapper Dan, Lurking in the background, however, is Hail to All, a stretch runner capable of taking it all.

"He's fit and ready," said trainer Eddie Yowell, who is keeping Mrs. Ben Cohen's flashy son of Hail to Reason at Monmouth Park until Friday before shipping in for the final leg of the Triple Crown for 3-year-olds.

Yowell is asking Hail to All for a difficult task since the Florida-bred colt raced Monday at Garden State Park, winning the Jersey Derby by 1 1/2 lengths for his first major triumph after knocking at the door in all his starts. He'll go into the Belmont with a career record of six victories and the same number of seconds and thirds in 21 starts.

Taking It Easy
Meantime, the two sons of the unbeaten Italian stallion — Ribot — owned by first cousins (Tom Rolfe by Raymond Guest) and Dapper Dan by Ogden Phipps) have been taking it easy competitively since their thrilling finish in the Preakness May 15.

In its six modern runnings, the Jersey Derby, run a week before the Belmont, has produced three strong challengers for the New York classic. Jaipur took the 1962 Jersey Derby by disqualification and then won the Belmont. Candy Spots won the 1963 Jersey Derby and was second to Chateaugay in the Belmont. And last year Roman Brother also was runner-up to Quadrangle in the Belmont after capturing the Jersey fixture.

Sellers on Sleeper
Johnny Sellers, who rode to fame on another runner of the same type, Carry Back, again will be astride Hail to All, after riding Hail to All in all his races he was taken off the colt for the Kentucky Derby and the mount given to Manuel Yeaza. He finished fifth. Sellers was back in

Tittle Positive He Has Retired

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Y. A. Tittle, professional football's old Bald Eagle, says he has notified representatives of a projected Continental League franchise at Tulsa that he is retired for good this time.

"I'd be 40 years old and I'm not coming out of retirement to quarterback — unless they want to use wheelchairs," Tittle quipped Wednesday night.

The former San Francisco 49er and New York Giant star in the National Football League said that Tulsa representatives had asked him playing and coaching status.

"I told them I'm in the insurance business (at Palo Alto, Calif.) and still employed as a scout by the New York Giants," Tittle said he was not in a position to serve in any capacity with a Tulsa team and enjoyed living in California.

"I know I retired from football about five times," he said, "but this time I mean it." He retired from the Giants at the end of last season.

Difficult for Republicans to Stack Up Issues Against President Johnson

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans hunting a formula to vitalize their minority role are running into difficulties in pinpointing issues on which to oppose President Johnson.

GOP members of Congress made it apparent in a barrage of announcements Wednesday that they have wide differences of opinion among themselves on major international and domestic problems.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen illustrated this cleavage when he was informed that a group of four House Republicans would go to Paris June 11 to inquire into the strained relations between the United States and De Gaulle's France.

"Are you kidding?" Dirksen asked reporters. "After all, we do have a State Department and we have a President who is supposed to conduct our foreign affairs." He added that such a delegation could cause an international incident if a member talked out of turn at an overseas news conference. Dirksen was asked how he reconciled a statement by the GOP Policy Coordinating Committee that the Democratic administration "has yet to develop an adequate military program to counter the problem of Communist aggression in South Viet Nam" with general party support for the course Johnson is taking there.

"There is nothing else to support at this point," he replied. Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, House minority leader, disclosed that the policy coordinating group — made up of Senate and House leaders, governors, former presidential nominees and members of the national committee — had tossed back to congressional Republicans the hot-potato issue of state laws banning the union shop.

Republicans are split over Johnson's request for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act provision which permits states to ban the union shop. Under a union-shop contract negotiated by a union and an employer, all employees covered by the contract must join the union.

The Senate leader said the coordinating group hadn't acted on a 12-page task force report which generally endorsed a House GOP substitute for the administration's voting rights bill.

Republicans are of several minds about the course Johnson is following in the Dominican Republic, although their leaders have supported the President's intervention there. Significantly, Dirksen said this issue was not raised at all within the coordinating committee.

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—An authorization of just under $5.2 billion to keep the ambitious U.S. space program in high gear during the next fiscal year moves back to the House today.

The Senate gave it top-heavy approval by a 79-4 vote late Wednesday.

Included in the funds were another $242.1 million to continue the two-man Gemini program and $2,973,385,000 for the Apollo project aimed at landing astronauts on the moon by 1970.

Senate changes include a net increase of about $13 million. WASHINGTON (AP)—A panel headed by presidential consumer adviser Mrs. Esther Peterson has urged a nationwide effort to help poor people get better buys for their money at neighborhood stores.

In a report issued Wednesday night the 37-member panel said, "The poor pay more because of their lack of education and shopping skill; because of their special situation of needing goods without adequate means of paying for them; because the marketing system which serves others so adequately is in many ways not suited to their particular needs."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Presidential aide McGeorge Bundy says U.S. action in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic should be judged by its results.

While immediate and unanimous approval is not anticipated, he told an International Publishers Association luncheon Wednesday, "we expect... to be judged in the end by the result, by the effect" of what is done. He said U.S. power was being used in the two nations in the interest of peace and the people involved.

Tories Cheer Split

LONDON (AP)—Britain's Labor government got caught in a tie vote on a major tax-reform measure in the House of Commons Wednesday night when three Laborites failed to show up in time. Two of the missing men were members of the government.

Conservative members of the House roared in jubilation as the 281-281 split was announced. The bill was saved when Sir Herbert Butcher, a Conservative and the acting chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, cast his vote in the Labor column. By tradition, the chair when breaking a tie always votes to keep an issue before the House.

Warns of New Shortage

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri told India's already hungry people Wednesday night to tighten their belts because a new food shortage may be developing.

Shastri said some areas of Mysore and Bihar states already have run out of food. He told a meeting of chief ministers—governors—that his government may have to reduce its monthly shipment of 600,000 tons of grain to the states to 450,000 tons soon.

Shastri blamed the India-Pakistan territorial quarrel in the Rann of Kutch without explaining how this affects the food situation.

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Eisaku Sato formed a new Cabinet today in an attempt to consolidate control of the Liberal-Democratic party prior to upper house elections July 4.

No policy changes were expected. Japanese prime ministers adjust their Cabinet lineups periodically.

Sato retained two members of the Cabinet he took over when Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda resigned because of ill health last November. They were Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shiina and chief Cabinet Secretary Tomisaburo Hashimoto.

Wide Areas Are Hit by Storms, Tornadoes June 2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stormy weather, with tornadoes, rain and hail, hit wide areas of the nation Wednesday night, killing at least two persons, injuring about 100 others and causing property damage.

The storm belt ranged from West Texas to Minnesota and from the Ohio Valley into the Middle Atlantic states and southern New England. The storms diminished during the early morning.

A tornado struck three small communities in West Texas — Hale Center, Cotton Center and Spade. A farm woman was killed and her husband seriously injured when their home was demolished near Cotton Center.

About 100 persons suffered injuries at Hale Center, a town of about 2,500. Six persons were reported in serious condition.

The twister hit the business district hardest. Several homes also were destroyed or damaged. National Guardsmen and Army reservists were sent to the town from Plainview.

A farm worker was killed near Bowling Green, Ky., when struck by lightning during a thunderstorm. Several funnel clouds were sighted west of Topeka, Kan., southwest of St. Louis and south of Omaha. Hail pelted areas in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and West Virginia.

Heavy rain fell in much of the storm belt.

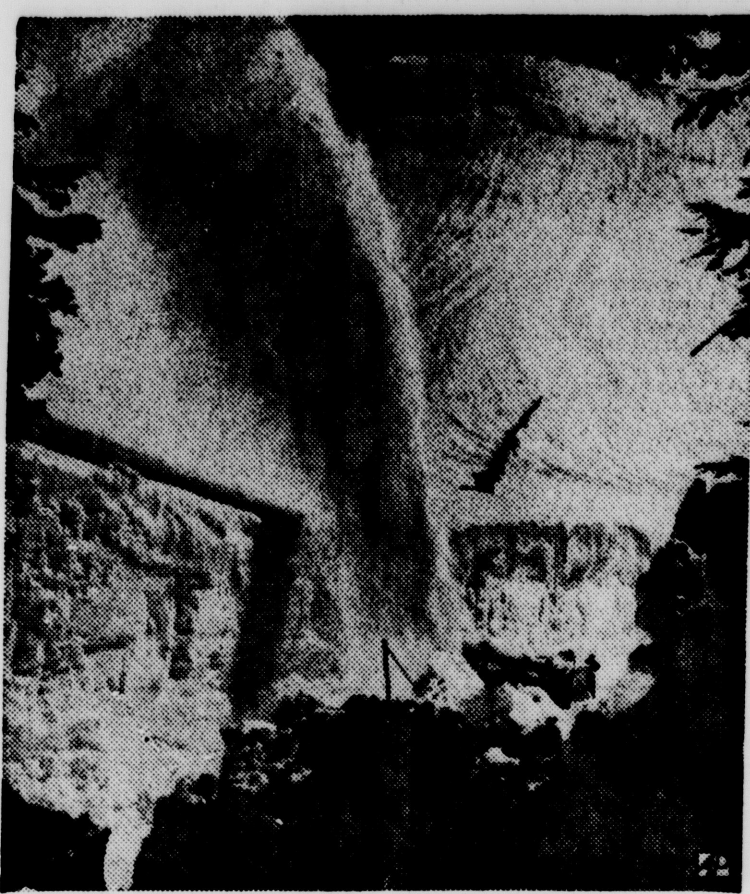

Car Found, Other Gone

A car reported stolen Wednesday was located not far from where it had been taken, and a report early today noted the theft of another from the Park Diner lot. The car of Thomas Cherveny, of Route 42, Shandaken, reported stolen from the Kingston Plaza Wednesday morning was reported located in the early afternoon in the same area by officers Louis Sapp and Thomas Childs. A report shortly after midnight noted the theft of the car of Georgia Senor, of Colonial Gardens from the parking lot of the diner.

Note Stock Exchange

NEW YORK (AP) — Indian Head Mills, Inc., will acquire Fenimore Fabrics, Inc., Cobleskill, N.Y., in a stock exchange, it was announced today.

The big textile firm said it would give 50,417 Indian Head shares for the specialty Triot Knitting Company, founded by Robert B. Putnam, now president.

Tower Trouble Is Reminiscent Of Coop's Woes

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The service tower trouble which delayed the launching of astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II today was reminiscent of similar trouble experienced two years ago by astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr.

With about 30 minutes to go in Cooper's countdown on May 14, 1963, the service tower surrounding his Atlas rocket was unable to move away because a diesel unit failed.

After more than an hour, the diesel was repaired. But by then radar trouble developed at a tracking station in Bermuda.

That shot had to be postponed. Cooper finally was launched on a 22-orbit mission the following day.

The Atlas service tower moves several hundred feet away from the rocket on railroad tracks.

The tower for Titan 2, being used for Gemini 4, folds away from the rocket and lays flat on the pad.

Young GOP Club Elects Fowler, Other Officers

The new president of the Young Republican Club is Norman Fowler of the Ruby-Sawkill Road, he having been elected to the post Wednesday night and a panel of officers to serve with him.

Congratulations came from John Ray Mayone, chairman of the Republican Committee, and a past president of the Young GOP.

Mayone praised the young group for their interest in politics and solicited their support for party candidates in the November election.

Immediate past president of the organization is Ira Trast, who served last year.

Elected with Fowler at the meeting in Kingston Elks Club was the following panel of officers:

Judy Petro, first vice president; Allen Anderson, second vice president; Patricia Kelly, recording secretary; Barbara Pare, corresponding secretary and Harold Monashefsky, treasurer.

Rondout Nat'l

been designed to accommodate five business establishments.

On April 15 last, The Freeman reported that Joseph S. Forno, proprietor of Colonial Pharmacy on the Village Green in Woodstock, would open another pharmacy in the Bradley Meadows complex. Forno will retain his present pharmacy but transfer the prescription department and pharmacists to the new location.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. (A&P) confirmed in January that it had been negotiating for more than a year with St. John for a 3.2 acre tract of land fronting Bradley Meadows and that a lease was "being finalized."

Tentative plans called for construction of an ultra modern new supermarket.

Established in 1848

One of the oldest financial institutions in the area, the Rondout National Bank will observe its 117th anniversary in September.

The bank was established in 1848 on Ferry Street in the Village of Rondout and was called the Bank of Rondout.

In 1929 the bank building was enlarged to extend to East Strand and in 1953 the present location at Broadway and Henry Street was developed. Subsequently a branch bank was erected in Port Ewen to serve the area south of Kingston.

Officers of Rondout National are James A. Dwyer, president; Irving L. Eyles, executive vice president and trust officer; James J. Rua, cashier and assistant trust officer.

Use Less Silver In Coins, LBJ Asking Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson recommended today that less silver be put into U.S. coins from now on to conserve the scarce metal.

Johnson made his recommendation to Congress in a message that would, if carried out:

Penny, Nickel Stay

Leave the penny and nickel unchanged—they contain no silver.

Provide for new dimes and quarters with no silver content. They have about 90 per cent silver now. The coins would have a copper core with an outside layer of a mixture of copper and nickel that would make them acceptable in vending machines rigged to reject slugs with no silver content.

Allow 40 per cent silver content, instead of 90, in a new half dollar.

Make no change in the old silver dollar but continue the ban on coining the cartwheel.

The new coins will not come out until next year. Meantime, Johnson said that 300 million troy ounces—more than 10,000 tons—of silver will go into coinage this year. This is far more than the total free world output of silver expected for this year.

Johnson said silver is getting too scarce to keep on using it in coins on a large scale.

Emphatic on One Point

"To maintain unchanged our high silver coinage in the face of this stark reality," he said, "would only invite a chronic and growing scarcity of coins."

The President was especially emphatic on one point: "I want to make it absolutely clear that these changes in our coinage will have no effect on the purchasing power of our coins."

May Be Temporary

The ban on the silver dollar may be only temporary. Johnson recently recommended the coining of 45 million of them, but the decision was canceled.

Johnson said that in the first year after Congress authorizes the new coins — and he urged that this be done at this session — the government expects to turn out 3.5 billion coins. This is 1.5 billion more than the expected output of silver coins this fiscal year which ends June 30.

In the second year, the output is expected to reach seven billion and within less than three years, the expectation is that all coinage needs can be met with new coins if necessary.

Change at Ferroxcube

G. ARTHUR ERICKSON

Consolidated Electronics Industries, parent company of Ferroxcube Corporation of America, announced today the reassignment of Joseph P. O'Reilly, Ferroxcube president. New Ferroxcube president is G. Arthur Erickson. With Con Electron since 1957, Erickson is presently chairman of the board of MEPCO Inc. and is a board member of Sessions Clock and Simatics, all Con Electron subsidiaries. He is also a director of Digitronics. The Erickson family now resides in Smoke Rise, N. J.

O'Reilly became Ferroxcube general manager in October 1957, vice president and general manager in January 1959, and was named Ferroxcube president in January 1962. During these seven and a half years, he successfully guided a dramatic company growth — from a small mill building on East Bridge Street, Saugerties, to two ultra-modern 125,000 square feet of manufacturing space. In this tour, Ferroxcube employment rose from less than 100 to a present count of over 900. Product growth at Ferroxcube was equally spectacular — from a small supplier of television ferrites to the largest independent manufacturer of memory cores, planes, and stacks for the computer industry.

In the same period, Ferroxcube successfully marketed a new line of ferrite devices to the tele-communication and controls industry. O'Reilly also charted a new course with computer peripheral equipment such as memory systems and recording head assemblies.

With a BSEE Degree from Manhattan College, Mr. O'Reilly continued active in the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers. Locally he served the Kingston Kiwanis Club and the Manhattan College Alumni Society. He is also a board member of Rip Van Winkle Council of the Boy Scouts of America and a member of the Benedictine
